AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.
NOT A FEW

Of the worst disorders that affect mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect Helmbold's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla. It cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy, that could be relied on, has long been sought for, and now, for the first time, the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show the sick that it has virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonfuls of the Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla or the decoction as usually made.

☞ THESE EXTRACTS HAVE BEEN ADMITTED TO USE IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY, and are also in very general use in all the State HOSPITALS and PUBLIC SANITARY INSTITUTIONS throughout the land, as well as in private practice, and are considered as invaluable remedies.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Adoption of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill.

No Limitation in its Application to States.

Proposed Investigation into Alleged Treasury Frauds.

Speech of Reverdy Johnson on the Constitutional Amendment.

Several Generals Having Several Ovations, &c.

Discussion and Amendments of the Naval Appropriation Bill.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Feb. 9.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU.

Among the very first things that the House did today was to take up the Freedmen's Bureau Bill as it passed the Senate last night, and concur in the amendment which the Senate made to the House amendment, which strikes out the words which confine its operations to the States wherein the writ of habeas corpus was suspended on the 1st of February, 1866. By this action the jurisdiction of the Bureau extends over the States of Missouri, Maryland and Delaware, as well as other Southern States.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The House took up the Naval Appropriation Bill to-day as it came from the Committee of the Whole yesterday, and passed it. The only changes from the report of the Committee being the adoption of the appropriations for the purchase of Seavy's Island, at Portsmouth, N. H., and for the purchase of the right of drainage through the Charlestown Navy-yard. When the items for the Brooklyn Navy-yard were considered, Mr. WASHBURNE made a special raid upon them and every provision, except a few of small moment, was stricken out; thus the means whereby the most important yard in the country is to carry on its work are denied by the mistaken zeal of a few false economists, who will probably swallow large-sized camels before the session is over. The appropriations for New-York are reduced from one and a half millions, originally reported, to less than three hundred thousand dollars. The appropriations for the Norfolk and Pensacola Navy-yards were limited to twenty thousand for each place to preserve the public property.

PROTECTION OF LOYAL PEOPLE.

The Judiciary Committee of the House, in the reference to them of a bill introduced by Representative MCKEE, referred to one of their number, Hon. B. C. COOK, of Illinois, the question of framing a measure for the protection of the loyal people of Kentucky and other States, who are now being persecuted for helping to execute the laws during the progress of the war. Mr. COOK executed his duty, and the bill drawn by him was this morning adopted by the Committee and will be reported to the House at the earliest opportunity. It is in the form of an amendment to the act of March 3, 1863, giving the President the power to suspend the privileges of the writs of habeas corpus. Its first section provides that any search, seizure, arrest or imprisonment made, done or committed, or any acts omitted to be done during the rebellion by any officer or person under or by virtue of any order, written or verbal, general or special, issued by any military officer of the United States holding command of the department, district or place within which such seizure, search, arrest or imprisonment was made, done or committed, or any acts were so omitted to be done, either by the person or officer to whom the order is addressed, or by any other person aiding or assisting him therein shall be held and are hereby declared to come within the provisions of the act to which this is amendatory, and within the provisions of the fourth, fifth and sixth sections of said act, for all the purposes of defence, transfer, appeal, error or limitation provided therein. Its second section provides that the production of the original or a certified copy of the order mentioned in the first section shall be evidence of its authenticity and if the order is lost or destroyed, production of secondary evidence shall be admissible. Its third section provides that the right of removal from the State Court to the United States Circuit Court may be exercised as before; but nothing herein contained shall be held to abridge the right of such removal of the final judgment in the State Court. Its fourth section provides that if the State Court shall, notwithstanding the performance of all things required for the removal of the cause to the Circuit Court aforesaid, proceed further in said cause or prosecution, for if the certificate of removal is produced, all such proceeding shall be void, and all parties concerned therein shall be liable in damages to the party aggrieved. It will be seen that this bill is of the first importance, and that its effect will be much the same as that of one clause in the order sometime ago issued by Gen. GRANT for the protection of persons in the late rebellious States. The measure will probably encounter serious opposition, but the Judiciary Committee expect to be able to finally carry it through the House.

STAR WORSHIP.

One of the episodes in the House this afternoon was the formal presentation of Major-Gen. OSTERHAUS to the members, upon motion of Mr. SMITH, of Kentucky, who prefaced his motion by stating that the distinguished visitor had shown great bravery and ability on the battle-field. Gen. OSTERHAUS upon being conducted to the Speaker's stand, and being introduced, made a brief reply, in rather broken English, for which he facetiously apologized and asked to be excused. The House responded in hearty applause and laughter. Gen. OSTERHAUS is famous in the army for his courage and hard fighting, and for his characteristic reply to Gen. MCPHERSON, when he was admonished by the latter of a contemplated attack from the rebels. The reply of OSTERHAUS was: "If dey comes up in front of my division, I make dem hell smell."

THE VIRGINIA DELEGATION.

All of the Virginia Legislative Committee, to present the loyal resolutions to the President, arrived here today, and attempted to execute their mission at 3 o'clock this afternoon, but failed, as the President was busy with the Cabinet. Arrangements have been made, however, to have an interview to-morrow at 10. Speaker BALDWIN, of the House of Delegates, has been selected as spokesman for the occasion, and the delegation expect that the President will give a free expression of his views on the subject of Southern loyalty and the success of his policy in the late rebellious States.

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL.

No one will be admitted to the Capitol on the 12th inst. who does not hold a ticket. Only 1,200 persons can be admitted in the galleries, and the floor of the House will be necessarily filled with officials of the government; therefore, if persons flock here from other cities on that day, they will be disappointed at the ceremonies.

MR. REVERDY JOHNSON'S SPEECH.

Mr. JOHNSON'S speech in the Senate to-day was principally devoted to controverting the propositions argued by Mr. SUMNER in his lengthy paper a few days ago. It was one of Mr. JOHNSON'S best efforts. He endeavored to show that the original framers of the Constitution never contemplated perfect equality of races before the law, and that Mr. SUMNER, to be consistent in his theory of suffrage, must admit the right of females to vote, that negroes could never be placed on perfect equality with the white race, and that all men feel that the negro cannot be received on equal footing, socially or politically, with the white race.

ABOUT JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The President to-day transmitted to the House of Representatives communications from the Secretary of War and the Attorney-General, in reply to a resolution requesting him, if not incompatible with the public interests, to furnish any report or reports made by the Judge-Advocate-General, or any other officer of the Government, as to the grounds, facts or accusations upon which JEFFERSON DAVIS, CLEMENT C. CLAY, JR., STEPHEN R. MALLORY and DAVID L. YULEE, or either of them, are held in confinement. The Attorney-General says to the President: "Sundry reports of the facts which go to show that JEFFERSON DAVIS and other rebels have been guilty of high crimes, have been made to you, as the Chief Executive officer of the Government. Most of the evidences on which they are based was obtained ex parte, without notice to the accused; and while they were in custody in military prisons, their publication might wrong the Government, or the accused, or both. While I see that much wrong may flow from the publication, I cannot see that any good would come from it. In my opinion, public and private justice alike demand that they should not be made public." The Secretary of War says to the President, "These reports were made for your own information, and contain abstracts of evidence and ex parte proof in possession of the bureau of military justice. Pending any action in respect to the parties accused, the publication of the report is, in my opinion, incompatible with the public interest." The President concurs in these opinions.

MEDICAL STATISTICS.

Upon representations of the great value of medical statistics collected during the war in the Provost-Marshal-General's Bureau and in the Surgeon-General's Department, Senator SHERMAN introduced in the Senate this afternoon a resolution directing the Secretary of War to communicate to the Senate a compendium of the medical statistics collected since the commencement of the rebellion in the offices of the Provost-Marshal-General and Surgeon-General. This, if fully and carefully prepared, will prove an invaluable work to this country, and to all the world besides.

DATE OF PENSIONS.

A few weeks ago the House established a rate by vote upon a claim that the payment of a pension to the widow or other relative of deceased soldiers should in all cases commence from the date of the passage of the act allowing the pension, and not date back to the time of the decease. To-day another vote was had on the same question, and after considerable discussion the House fixed the date of the pension from the day on which the soldier died. The House also gave a pension to a minor child or daughter of a soldier who died from disease contracted while in the service of the United States. The proof was that the father died leaving a widow and the child in question, and that not long since the widow died, leaving the minor child helpless. The pension is to continue until the girl reaches the age of 16. Some of the members urged this pension as a matter of charity, but others put it on the ground of a right. A pension of eight dollars per month was also given to ISABELLA HALL, of Maine, who has served laboriously and steadily during the war as a nurse. Whilst traveling upon the Mississippi River, on board the Jacob Strader, Mrs. HALL accidentally fell through the hatchway of the vessel, and received serious and lasting bodily injury. The House considered her claim to a pension was valid, and accordingly placed her upon the list.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.

The National Democratic Executive Committee have had a meeting for general consultation, but did not come to any determination as to recommending any particular or special course of policy to be hereafter pursued by the Democratic Party. A mass meeting is advertised to sustain the restoration policy of the President, to take place on the 22d of February.

CHARGES OF MALFEASANCE ON THE PART OF GOVERNMENT AGENTS.

Congress will be compelled to take some action in regard to the charges of corruption on the part of Government Agents at the South. Already there are several resolutions pending in the two Houses looking to such an inquiry. Mr. DAVIS, of Kentucky, offered a resolution in the Senate this afternoon, which provides for a special committee of Senators to investigate charges of fraud, peculation and extortion against agents of the Cotton Bureau. The charges are made by the public press and by citizens, and especially cotton planters and cotton factors. An amendment was offered by Mr. MCDOUGAL, requiring investigation of all frauds on the part of Government officials, where the matter may be inquired of, at the port of New-Orleans and in Mississippi and Arkansas. Mr. DAVIS' preamble sets forth that it has been made to appear to the Senate, that Government agents, in some instances, have been indicted by the State courts for swindling, and the jurisdiction of said courts in the premises has been denied, and the accused agents taken out of the hands of the civil authorities by military force. Heretofore propositions of inquiry relative to the action of agents of the Treasury have been disregarded, because the Secretary of the Treasury had given the subject attention, and did not find sufficient tangible evidence to warrant him in going further than he describes in his annual report, but it is now asserted by some members of Congress that the proof has assumed a more prosecutive shape, and for that reason, as well as to quiet the clamor for investigation, the Committee asked for by Mr. DAVIS or some other Commission of Inquiry will be appointed. For two years or more we have been hearing here grave charges against officers of the Government, who, it is alleged, have made immense sums of money by improper and corrupt use of official power, but these charges were confined generally to curbstone gossip. It is due to the officers, however, especially if they be innocent, that the charges should be investigated.

TREASURY NOTES IN THE SOUTH.

Collectors through the Southern States have been receiving for payment of dues 7-30 Treasury notes from which the coupons have been detached. These notes are in those States received as currency. In answer to a letter from the Collector of the First District in Texas, addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury on this subject, Mr. MCCULLOCH says: "Congress alone having the power to regulate the lawful money of the United States, and having decided what shall constitute it, and that nothing but lawful money shall be received in payment of dues, the Secretary of the Treasury has no power to receive 7.30 Treasury notes in payment of dues, because they are not lawful money.

THIRTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

SENATE....FRIDAY, Feb. 9.

PETITIONS.

Mr. COWAN presented a petition in favor of a protective tariff, and

Mr. SHERMAN presented a petition for a reduction of the tax on agricultural implements, which were referred to the Finance Committee.

CREDENTIALS.

Mr. GUTHRIE presented the credentials of GEORGE HOUSTON, Senator-elect from Alabama, for the short term. Mr. GUTHRIE stated that Mr. HOUSTON, during the war, was a consistent Union man.

The credentials were ordered to lie upon the table.

MEDICAL STATISTICS.

Mr. SHERMAN presented a resolution, which was agreed to, calling upon the Secretary of War for a compendium of medical statistics collected during the war.

ALLEGED TREASURY FRAUDS.

Mr. DAVIS offered a resolution declaring that as charges of peculation and fraud had been made against the cotton agents of the Treasury Department, therefore,

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to investigate such charges.

Mr. SUMNER objected to the present consideration of the resolution, but afterward withdrew his objection, at the request of Mr. SHERMAN, who deprecated the habit of making general accusations and called upon Mr. DAVIS to make specific charges.

Mr. DAVIS had been informed from various sources of the truth of these charges. He had been told by a friend of his, who had means of knowing, that within his own experience in the South there was not a man connected with the Treasury Department within a swoop of a thousand miles who had not been corrupted. He would agree to substantiate the charges if the Committee was formed.

Mr. SHERMAN said that the charge of Mr. DAVIS was very sweeping in its character. The Secretary of the Treasury had told him that the most violent charges were generally brought against the most faithful officers. He called upon Mr. DAVIS to make a specific charge, and he would guarantee a fair investigation.

Mr. DAVIS called for the appointment of a committee, the majority of whom would be favorable to a fair investigation. He had been told that Gen. DANA, while in command on the Mississippi, had seized and appropriated cotton belonging to a private citizen, and used the proceeds for his own benefit. He did not think it fair to place such an investigation in the hands of men who wanted to stifle it. He would ask nothing more than a fair committee.

Mr. SHERMAN said that while he was a member of the House he never sanctioned an investigation of charges against a Democratic administration until they were properly certified to. He had no objection to the proposition of Mr. DAVIS, if there was reasonable ground for it.

Mr. DAVIS (Dem.) said he would agree to prove other frauds than cotton frauds, if the committee were raised. He would agree to prove frauds of money in the name of the Government committed by Federal officers in Kentucky.

Mr. FESSENDEN was afraid that Mr. DAVIS looked upon every one connected with the Government with such a jaundiced eye that he would, if charged with the investigation proposed, unintentionally do them injustice; he could not, therefore, agree with Mr. SHERMAN that Mr. DAVIS might with propriety be entrusted with the conduct of such an investigation, while he (Mr. FESSENDEN) had charge of these cotton agencies. He had heard of a great many accusations against men, but they were all unfounded. Finally he adopted a rule to compel all charges to be reduced to writing, and after that he had heard no more complaints. He could find no man willing to take the responsibility of making charges against these agents. He believed the present Secretary of the Treasury to be competent and faithful in the discharge of his duties. He repelled the charge that Mr. MCCULLOCH had refused to do justice to any man, and he was opposed to these fishing committees being raised on general charges. He would favor an investigation on specific, or on any specific charge. He hoped the committee would not be appointed until something definite was given to the Senate on the subject.

Mr. CONNESS moved the postponement of the subject under consideration for the purpose of taking up the bill to extend the time for the withdrawal of goods from public warehouses.

Mr. MCDOUGAL (Dem.) offered an amendment to Mr. DAVIS' resolution, so as to make it include an investigation into all the charges against Government officers at New-Orleans and in the Mississippi Department. Mr. MCDOUGAL, in the course of some remarks, stated that he knew of a man who had been rejected by the Senate for captain and quartermaster, who was nothing but a common gambler in California, not worth $10,000. After his rejection by the Senate he went down to New-Orleans, where his brother was in command. He engaged in operations there. In a short time he died and by his will, which was now in the Surrogate's Court in New-York, it was clear that he had made $2,000,000. He supposed the Senate knew who he meant. The name of BENJAMIN F. BUTLER was familiar to all.

Mr. CONNESS moved to lay Mr. DAVIS' resolution on the table, which was negatived.

Mr. DAVIS knew of several who had gone into the army very poor, and had become rich on very moderate salaries. He confessed that he had his prejudices on this subject, and that he would commence the investigation with a conviction that there was a great deal of swindling done. He would not ask to be upon the Committee, if raised. All he would ask was a fair committee and a fair investigation. Such a committee and such an investigation would bring millions to the Treasury.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Pending this discussion the morning hour expired, and the joint resolution to amend the Constitution of the United States was taken up.

Mr. JOHNSON took the floor. In the remarks he was about to make he would address himself, first, to the consideration of the resolution in order and ascertain its exact meaning; secondly, to the supposed necessity which causes such an amendment; and, thirdly, to its effect upon the condition of the country. In this, as upon every case upon which human judgment is to exercised, it is very important that we should very distinctly understand what the measure under consideration is. The second section of the first article of the Constitution regulates the mode in which representation and taxation are to be ascertained. It makes both depend upon the same fact. Representation is to be apportioned according to numbers, and direct taxation is to be apportioned in the same way. As the resolution was first reported from the Committee, it stood in that way. Upon the recommitment, the provision which it originally contained in relation to direct taxation was annulled, and it now stands as a proposition to amend the Constitution so as to effect alone the second section of the first article of the Constitution, as it relates to the mode in which the number of representatives is to be ascertained. The Senate will remember that representation was based upon numbers, with two exceptions. The first exception was Indians not taxed. The other was that that portion of the people in the Southern States which was held in slavery, was not to be taken into the account to its entire extent, but only to the extent of three-fifths of the whole; that as the Constitution now stands, and Slavery no longer exists, the Southern States would be entitled to representatives for the whole number of people there. The effect of the proposed amendment, with the exception of the proviso, is to make no change in the corresponding requirement of the Constitution, except that it omits the provision that three-fifths only of a certain class shall be counted. The reason for that omission is, of course, apparent. There are no persons now in existence in any State of the Union who are not to be considered as men, but as property. The provision in relation to the estimation of three-fifths instead of the whole number was made because there did not at that time exist in the States a class of persons who held the double capacity of men and property, or, to speak more correctly, who were persons and chattels. There was great difficulty in the convention in providing for the manner in which as far as that class of persons was concerned, representation was to be sustained and equal difficulty in ascertaining, as far as they were concerned, how the provision as to taxation was to be made. In these days there were no such objections as seem now to be inseparable to the minds of some Senators on the subject of compromising. They came to the conclusion that the good of the country demanded that there should be a compromise, and they proposed as a compromise the provision which now stands, and that is, for the purpose of representation, persons held in slavery or involuntary servitude shall be deemed three-fifths men and two-fifths property, and they established the same rule in relation to taxation. They very wisely concluded that it was all-important that some general rule should be adopted; that this was the best rule because promising more than any other rule to arrive at a just result of ascertaining the number of Representatives and the quota of taxation. Now as far as relates to the quota of taxation and as far as relates to the quota of Representatives the state of things is clearly changed. There are no persons now, so to speak, who are three-fifths men and two-fifths property. We all stand upon the same platform. As we came from nature's God we stand together upon an unity as far as relates to human rights. And it was entirely unnecessary, therefore, to change the mode of apportioning representation and taxation, except for some other cause which did not enter into the estimation of the wise and great ones by whom the Government was made and the Constitution adopted, in recommending this particular provision. This amendment says to the States: You are to be entitled to a number of representatives in proportion to your numbers; which is all right. Our fathers designed that when they made the Government, and under it the country has gone on prosperously. But, says the amendment, further, in the exercise of your right, you think proper to exclude from the privilege of suffrage any portion of the number of that population on account of race or color, that portion is to be deducted from the amount of numbers which is to regulate the number of your representatives and your power in the Government is correspondingly decreased. And it does more than that. It not only says that if there be by State legislation a distinction on account of color in the exercise of the elective franchise, not only shall the number of such persons who may be so excluded from franchise be deducted from the number of persons which is to ascertain the number of your representatives, but every man, whether entitled to vote or not by the laws of the State, of whom it might be said he belongs to the race, and every man who comes under the denomination of color within the limits of the State is to be deducted from the enumeration; if, therefore, as is done in the State of New-York and several other States of the Union, a distinction is made between the right to vote upon the part of the colored man and the right to vote upon the part of the white man, in any way, by requiring for the one a qualification not required for the other, the whole of that population in the State of New-York is to be deducted from the enumeratives. Under the constitution and laws of New-York, no person of color can vote in that State who has not a freehold and the required residence. The possession of a freehold is not required of white voters of New-York; and there is, therefore, in the State of New-York at this time a distinction between the white and colored races in the exercise of the elective franchise, and this resolution says that if there be any such distinction there, not only are the number of persons of that race who may be entitled to vote because they are freeholders to be deducted, but the entire number of the race, and New-York loses by it a portion of her Representatives.

Mr. CONNESS asked a question. Suppose one of these States, North Carolina for instance, if this amendment should be adopted, should enact that a property qualification should be required for the exercise of the franchise, not applicable to colored people alone, but to all alike, and such an amount was established as would lead to the exclusion of a large number of the colored population from the poles, would not that State be entitled, notwithstanding that exclusion, to representation for the entire population, black and white, inasmuch as the exclusion was not because of race or color, but because of proper qualification applying universally?

Mr. JOHNSON—Of course, I have said nothing to the contrary. None are to be excluded from the numbers except an entire class, as against whom some qualification is required for the exercise of the elective franchise that is not required of the white race. If the same qualification is required for both, there is no distinction. The honorable Senator's question is answered I think by the terms of the resolution. What I said was that as the elective franchise is regulated in New-York, unless it is changed by abolishing the freehold qualification, or by requiring a like qualification from white voters, the whole number of colored people will be deducted.

Mr. CONNESS desired Mr. JOHNSON to discuss the effect of the statute he had named under this amendment.

Mr. JOHNSON—I admit that in the case supposed by the honorable Senator there would be no deduction. They would all be enfranchised. If a State admit colored men to vote, and require a qualification which it does not exact from white men, then the entire colored population is to be deducted from the estimate. But, Mr. President, there is another question which the Senate will have to meet if this amendment is adopted. How many States now admit colored men to the exercise of the elective franchise? Only six. And how many exclude them positively from the right of suffrage? Thirty. Supposing all the States to be in the Union which are supposed to be out. Suppose they are to be esteemed as out of the Union. How many of those that are claimed to be in, whose representatives are upon this floor, give the colored man the right of suffrage? Only six. And unless the States change their policy, (and I am by no means persuaded that they will; on the contrary, as far as I have an opinion on the subject, I believe they will not, and that opinion is formed upon the occurrences of the times,) if this amendment passes, there is hardly one of these States that would not lose a representative provided they had the colored population among them. He referred to the effect which this amendment would have upon the several States. Senators representing States that would not be affected by it might vote for it. Massachusetts, according to the census of 1860, has a white population of 1,221,369, and a colored population of only 9,602; New-York has a white population of 3,831,730, and a colored population of 49,005; Vermont has a white population of 319,389, and a colored population of 709; New-Hampshire has 325,579 whites and 494 blacks. The game, so to speak, is a safe one for them. They will not be affected by it injuriously. They will lose no representatives. But, on the contrary, they gain not in the number of representatives, but in fact being met on this floor by a corresponding number of representatives from the other States, such as the Constitution of 1789 designed these other States should have, but they will be met by a number of representatives less by one-third than our fathers thought should come from those States. The chairs in the other hall that are placed there for the purpose of accommodating the representatives of the Southern States, will be more or less vacated, and what for? Is it from the danger of having them filled? Are not the North and the statesmen of the North equal to the South and the statesmen of the South on all subjects that may come up before the councils of the nation? What is there, looking to the history of the two sections in the past which would lead us to believe that the North is inferior to the South in anything of intellectual improvement or statesmanship? Maryland contained a population of 515,919 whites and 171,131 colored. To refuse to let the blacks vote would be to deprive her representatives. The populace of the State would never agree to this amendment. They would insist to the point of revolution upon the right to regulate the right of franchise within their limits.

Mr. JOHNSON then criticised the premises of Mr. SUMNER'S speech relating to the rights of the General Government to interpose in regulating the elective franchise of States. He read from KENT'S Commentaries, showing that prerogatives of the constitution were positive, specific, and, in the above regard, gave no authority for interference. No one had ever held before that the General Government was to step within the limits of the respective States and dictate to the people therein how they were to elect their Legislatures, and if Congress had no right to interfere with the elective franchise, was it honest now to attempt to thrust such interference upon the States indirectly, as was provided in the terms of this amendment at this point.

Mr. SUMNER asked if Congress had the power to annul all State laws in regard to distinction of color, could it not also annul all statutory provision for inequality of political rights?

Mr. JOHNSON thought that Congressional legislation in either case was entirely unconstitutional. Why were the Senators of the other side afraid to trust the people of their respective States? And if so apprehensive, upon what grounds did they assume to be confident that they had numbers sufficient to enable them to adopt this amendment? and while they were anxious for its passage, was it because they believed that it would have the desired effect in the South without affecting the system of State Government of the Northern States. This Union had always been dealt with as one. Why then was Congress unwilling to leave the new provision to the people of the entire Union, instead of pushing its passage indirectly through the Legislatures of a portion of the States? He then cited the case of Connecticut, and said the result would be repeated with greater emphasis in Maryland. Senators who now ardently advocated the measure would precipitately withdraw their support if they supposed that its operation would equally affect their own State, and if, in the natural occurrence of events, the black population should be equally distributed over the whole country, no representative of a Northern constituency could then be founed with intrepidity enough to countenance such a proposition. It was because the proposition did not affect them as it would the South that these gentlemen were so anxious for its adoption. The country had come out of the late war so depressed that it needed the utmost energies of the Government to bring about a recovery. He would advocate that the blacks be left as they are, protected by the Constitution in every privilege that pertains to the white man. Let the black work for his living as did the white man, giving him full right under the law to regulate his contracts, and thus show his capacity for exercising the right of suffrage. Congress now proposes to say to the South, unless you will let the black man vote your representation shall be lessened. But in assessing her taxes the full count of all the inhabitants would be the basis.

The Senate at 4 o'clock adjourned to meet on Monday next.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

PRIVATE BILLS.

The House spent more than an hour in the consideration of private bills.

IMPROVEMENT OF NAVIGATION.

Mr. DONNELLY introduced the memorial of the State of Minnesota for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi River to the Falls of St. Anthony.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Mr. ELIOT moved that the House proceed to the business on the Speaker's table.

Mr. LE BLOND (Dem.) inquired what business the gentleman (ELIOT) desired to get at.

Mr. ELIOT replied that the gentleman (LE BLOND) would know when the House agreed to his motion.

Mr. LE BLOND merely wanted to know whether there was a negro in it or not.

The House agreed to the motion of Mr. ELIOT.

VISIT OF GEN. OSTERHAUS.

Mr. SMITH, of Kentucky, said he understood there was present a distinguished General of the United States army, who represented the German element of the country, and who had shown his bravery and military ability on many a field, Major-Gen. OSTERHAUS. He moved that a recess of five minutes be taken, in order that the General might be presented to the House.

Mr. ELIOT said he could not refuse to acquiesce in the motion.

A recess of five minutes was declared, when the Speaker left the chair, and having been introduced to Major-Gen. OSTERHAUS by Mr. SMITH, invited the General to the stand, amid general applause.

The Speaker said:

GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES: When the people of this republic took up arms for its salvation, there were thousands and scores of thousands born in other lands who emigrated to this country to live and die under its flag, impelled by the same patriotism as the native born citizens who rallied to the defence of the republic. On many a battle-field conspicuous was the gentleman who by your order I have the honor to introduce to-day, Major-Gen. OSTERHAUS. [Applause.]

Major-Gen. OSTERHAUS spoke substantially as follows:

GENTLEMEN: You must excuse me from making a speech, as I cannot speak your language well, having come to this country when too old to learn it. In my own land your flag was the symbol of freedom, and having tried but failed to establish a German Union, I came to America, guided by the same symbol of the Stars and Stripes, and I did all I could to defend it on the battle-field. [Applause.]

The Speaker then introduced the members individually to Gen. OSTERHAUS.

TRIAL OF DAVIS.

The Speaker laid before the House a message from the President, in reply to a resolution heretofore adopted, stating that it would be incompatible with the public interests to communicate the record or report of the Judge-Advocate-General in relation to the charges pending against JEFFERSON DAVIS, CLEMENT C. CLAY, DAVID YULEE and STEPHEN R. MALLORY, the evidence being merely ex parte and intended for the President alone.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the business on the Speaker's table, and took up the Senate's amendments to the bill amendatory of the act to establish the Freedmen's Bureau; and, on motion, the House concurred in the Senate's amendments.

VISIT OF GEN. CROOK.

Mr. SCHENCK asked that the House take a recess of five minutes, in order that Major-Gen. CROOK might be introduced to the House.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. ROGERS (Dem.) suggested that the House invite all the army in.

The Speaker then introduced Gen. CROOK by saying that during a portion of the time that the country was engaged in a war for its salvation, the Valley of the Shenandoah was the scene of many defeats of the National army; but toward the close of the contest there was a General whose magnetic power over his men and brilliant deeds turned the valley of humiliation into one of victory. Prominent among the Generals with Major-Gen. PHIL. SHERIDAN was Major-Gen. CROOK, whom he had now the honor of presenting to the House. [Applause.]

Gen. CROOK responded by merely saying, "I thank you, gentlemen." [Applause.]

The Speaker then introduced the members separately to the General.

VISIT OF GENERAL WARD.

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings,

Mr. SMITH, of Kentucky, said that at the beginning of the war there were in the Western country some gentlemen who took sides with the Government, and who were prompt to hurry to the defence of the country. There was here present one of these men from his own State, in whom he had the greatest confidence and for whom he had the greatest admiration, and who went into the war at its commencement to uphold the banners of the republic and fought throughout the contest. He marched with distinction with SHERMAN'S army to the sea. He desired that Maj.-Gen. WARD might be introduced to the House.

A recess of five minutes was then declared, and Maj.-Gen. WARD was conducted to the stand by the Speaker.

The Speaker said: When the stern clouds of war burst over the land the hearts of all loyal people were soon warmed toward those brave men who stood by the imperiled flag. As they had just heard from the gentleman from Kentucky, (SMITH,) The gentleman at his side (Gen. WARD) was one of those men to whom the country does honor. He had, therefore, the greatest pleasure in introducing him to the House. (Applause.)

Gen. WARD cordially thanked the House for the honor received at their hands. When that unnatural and terrible rebellion was brought on, he resolved in the inmost recesses of his heart to sustain the Republic. He never, during that contest, laid down his arms, but kept the faith. He had now returned to civil life, and among the evidences of friendship extended to him he should ever highly cherish in grateful remembrance the kindness and friendship expressed for him here to-day. (Applause.)

NAVAL APPROPRIATIONS.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union to the Naval Appropriation Bill.

The House disagreed to the amendment of the committee, and retained the item of $165,000 for the island adjoining the Portsmouth Navy-yard. All the items for the Boston Navy-yard are retained, excepting $26,000 for the purchase of the right of drainage through the yard now held by the City of Charlestown and $167,361 for building offices, and $135,000 for the purchase of OAKMAN & ELDRIDGE'S wharf.

The House agreed with the Committee, and struck out in the New-York Navy-yard items $298,600 for machine-shop, main building, $191,490 for machine-shop, boiler-wing, $100,000 for quay wall extension at sewer, $81,500 for office building, $100,000 for filling places on the new purchase, $180,000 for machinry for new machine-shop, boiler-shop, pattern-shop and smithing. The only items retained are, $981,922 for iron-plating shop, $47,600 for receiving store, $65,000 for dredging channels, $20,500 for special repairs, $116,000 for repairs of all kinds, $90,000 for the purchase of the Ruggles' property, $30,000 for the preservation from destruction or decay of buildings already commenced.

All the items for the Philadelphia Navy-yard are retained, excepting $35,000 for Buckley's patent dryer.

All the appropriations for the Washington Navy-yard are retained.

The appropriations for the Norfolk and Pensacola Navy-yards were nearly all stricken out, but $20,000 were voted for each place for the protection of the public property.

An additional section was added, making the appropriation of bounties for the destruction of an enemy's vessel during the rebellion applicable to all cases, and also another section was added that no part of the amount appropriated by the bill shall be paid in violation of the provisions of the act prescribing the oath of office.

The bill was then passed.

BANKRUPTCY BILL.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy, and the time was occupied in discussing the various details of the bill; but no final action was taken.

THE ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. O'NEILL introduced a bill extending the benefits of Section 4 of the Army Appropriation Bill, approved March 3, 1865, so as to give all officers of volunteers below the rank of brigadier-general, who were mustered out of the service at their own request, or otherwise honorably discharged, after April 19, 1865, three months pay proper, the same as if they had been mustered out with their respective regiments. It was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The House adjourned.

OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENCE.

The Emperor's Speech and Mr. Seward's Dispatches—The New Turn to the Mexican Question—Public Opinion on the Emperor's Announcement.

PARIS, Friday, Jan. 26, 1866.

The Emperor's speech and Mr. SEWARD'S dispatches have given a new turn to the Mexican question, and I shall endeavor to give you a correct appreciation of the question as it stands at present.

In the first place, it was expected that the Emperor would use some such language as he has used in regard to the return of the troops from Mexico. It was expected that he would announce that the term of service of the French Army in that country approached its end. But it is doubtful whether he was prepared to announce that negotiations were on foot with MAXIMILIAN for the return of the troops, until pushed to it by the receipt of Mr. SEWARD'S two dispatches of the 6th and 16th of December last. It was not till after the reception of the last of these dispatches that the Count SAILLARD was sent to Mexico on a mission to MAXIMILIAN, and there is reason to believe also that this messenger will speak to MAXIMILIAN for the first time on the delicate subject of naming a day for the evacuation. It may therefore, I think, with fairness, be said that but for Mr. SEWARD'S dispatches the speech from the Throne would have differed materially from what it is.

At first the speech was received by everybody as a certain engagement for the speedy withdrawal of the troops, and thus it was that the roar of the big guns which announced the delivery of the Imperial speech was welcomed as a harbinger of joy by all who heard it. The Mexican Loan went down a franc at the Bourse, and for a day there seemed to be a general unanimity of opinion as to the course events were going to take in Mexico. But in the meantime the party hostile to the United States and republicanism, the party which favored the rebellion in the United States and urged on the Mexican expedition as a means of checking the growth of the Republic in America—a party, I am sorry to say, which is headed by men occupying high places about the Emperor's person—had time to rally and lay out a plan of campaign for reacting against this first public impression. This party, wounded also at the Emperor's kind words for the great American Republic, asserted and continue to assert that His Majesty does not intend to withdraw his troops from Mexico until the power of the new Government is perfectly consolidated; that at the risk even of a war with the United States he will remain as long as the troops are needed there; and that the language of the speech was purposely ambiguous so as to admit of this freedom of action. On the strength of the givings out of this party, the Mexican bonds went up again yesterday at the Bourse, and there are plenty of people who pretend—all the ministerial and clerical press enter into this category—that there is nothing changed in the position in regard to Mexico; and that MAXIMILIAN is not to be abandoned, no matter how long the work requires, till his power shall be consolidated beyond the possibility of failure.

But there is no logic in this view of the case. The Emperor was deceived by the Anti-Republican, Anti-American Party about him, and induced to believe that the American Union was broken up and harmless; that he could do as he pleased in Mexico, and that his performances in that country were to be great points in the history of his reign. Never were grosser deceptions practiced upon any man; never was there a sovereign with ordinary sagacity so completely deceived. It is probable that NAPOLEON has awakened from his deception, and that, willing to learn even at this late day, he intends to fall into the right course. The last dispatch of Mr. SEWARD, so positive and almost savage in its terms, must have given the coup de grace to His Majesty's awakening. It is impossible that he can imagine that he is going to play with the American people. It will do very well for the Anti-American Party about His Majesty to say that his ambiguous language means that he is going to stay in Mexico as long as he wishes; these people must say something to hide the shame of their defeat. But His Majesty, as chief of the State, cannot afford to attempt any double dealing on so grave a question for his country and his destiny, and to do so would be, as I have said above, contrary to the logic of the position. I believe, therefore, that His Majesty has really sent a messenger to MAXIMILIAN, to enter into an arrangement for the withdrawal of the troops, and that when he appealed in his speech to the American people to let him alone till he accomplished it, he was making an honest appeal, grounded on an honest disposition to get out of the difficulty as soon as possible, and desirous, while doing it, of preserving the peace with the United States. To do this he will require one year, but he will have no need of two.

The peremptory tone of Mr. SEWARD'S dispatches was not anticipated, and has taken very many people by surprise.

The ministerial papers, commenting upon the remark of M. DROUYN DE LHUYS, that the American Government must go to MAXIMILIAN for the suppression of interior abuses in Mexico, argue that this position of the Foreign Secretary is right, for the reason that the French Government has never considered its action in Mexico as an intervention, and that the nation freely chose its present form of government.

MALAKOFF.

THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

The Policy of the Emperor Napoleon to Mexico as Indicated in his Speech.

FRENCH INTERESTS ALONE TO BE CONSULTED.

From the Paris Temps, Jan. 25.

In the paragraph of his speech referring to Mexico, the Emperor refers to French interests as the only interests to be taken into account in deciding upon the maintenance or the recall of our troops. We felt bound in our yesterday's remarks to insist upon this point in the speech, and to draw the conclusion from it that the French Govrnment does not consider itself bound up with that of the Emperor MAXIMILIAN. Our interpretation is singularly confirmed to-day, by the manner in which the Mexican question is regarded in the Report upon the Position of the Empire. We have placed under the eyes of our readers the passage of the document relating to this subject. They will have noticed the distinctness with which the government repels all idea of monarchical proselytism, and

New-York, Friday Feb. 9—P. M.

The Foreign Exchanges are more depressed to-day for Saturday's mail than on any previous report. The Bills on London of Browns, and Belmont, the standard signatures of the market, have been sold at 107¼ ⅌ cent. Southern and other transient bank credits are quoted 106⅞@106½, and merchant bills, drawn against cotton, were difficult of negotiation at the lower figures of 106@105½ ⅌ cent. The Import trade are not large buyers of Exchange even at the reduced quotations, although money is easy at 6 ⅌ cent. and Gold steady at about 140 ⅌ cent. The demand for Gold to pay Customs to-day amounted to nearly or quite $600,000. The deposit in the Treasury at the close of Bank hours was $509,000, and the subsequent receipts at the office of the Cashier of the Custom-house continued until nearly 4 o'clock. The price in the Gold Room opened firm at 140⅜@140⅛, but soon fell off to 140⅛ and subsequently to 139⅞ ⅌ cent. At a later hour the quotation was reduced to 139⅜@⅝ ⅌ cent.

The Australasian's news, two days later from England, received this afternoon, advises a further fall of a penny sterling on middling Cottons at Liverpool, the latest quotation being 18¾d.@18⅞d. for Orleans. The decline is not wholly unlooked for by the trade here. The surprise has been that under the increasing certainty of much larger supplies from this country than the original estimates of last Summer and Fall, the Liverpool market should have been so long maintained in the neighborhood of 20d. sterling. United States 5-20s were steady in London at 66¼@66½ ⅌ cent., sterling Money. The price here to-day has also been steady at 102⅞@103 ⅌ cent., with sales at each figure. The new 5-20s, 103⅛@¼; the 10-40s, 94⅜@½; the 7.30s, 99⅞@99⅞.

The Railway Share movement at the Stock Exchange opened this morning with a fair degree of steadiness at yesterday's advance, and on Chicago and Rock Island there was a further rise of 1 ⅌ cent. But after the morning Board, Erie shares were weaker by ⅞@1 ⅌ cent., and carried down most of the other market from ¼ to ⅜ ⅌ cent. A large business was done through the morning and early part of the forenoon in Erie, Reading and Rock Island, but not without considerable resistance to the improved demand.

At 4 o'clock the following quotations were made as compared with Thursday afternoon. The Foreign Exchanges closed dull and depressed; Money easy to the Brokers at 5@6 ⅌ cent.; Gold, 139⅜ ⅌ cent.; Government Securities steady; the Railway speculation weaker than in the forenoon, except in one or two special cases; the general list leaving off dull in demand rather than heavy in prices.

At a meeting of the Associated Bank officers of this City, a few days ago, in relation to the recent letter of the Treasurer of the United States on taxing their gross in place of their net Deposits, the following resolution and statement of the case were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That as a reply to said letter the Banks state that the returns of deposits made to the Treasurer of the United States for purposes of taxation are based upon the actual amount of balances remaining in the Banks belonging to depositors after the close of each day, as soon as ascertained; and are made in the same manner as they would be made were they to be allowed to the depositors; that the operations of the Clearing-house can in nowise affect the same, as they are in all cases, whether for purposes of taxation or to ascertain the amounts due from the banks to their depositors, made in the same manner as they would be were there no Clearing-house in operation, any representations to the contrary notwithstanding.

And that any other method of making the returns would be untrue and contrary to the requirement of law, which is that a true sworn statement shall be rendered of the average amount of deposits due from the Banks for the six months preceding the date of such return.

OUR MERCANTILE MARINE COMMUNICATION WITH THE PACIFIC.

Its Projectors—Its Capital Invested—Steamers Employed, &c.

Mr. William H. Aspinwall, the chief founder of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, vouches freely for the entire accuracy of the statement that active measures are being taken by himself and others, to permanently establish an additional line of communication between New-York and San Francisco, via Panama. The gentleman named, firmly protests that the movement is not to degenerate into a black-mailing scheme for the extortion of money from existing steam lines, as the price of forbearance from competition for a share of the profitable California trade. On the contrary, he is equally emphatic and unreserved in declaring that the experiment of a new steam line is to be practically tried; that its projectors are not to be bought off, and that unless the public shall fail to give the new company a reasonable share of patronage, their enterprise will prove a permanent one. In view of statements like these, from such a source, all facts bearing upon the subject have large public interest, and we proceed to give such as we have been able to obtain upon reliable data.

The name of the new organization is to be the New-York and San Francisco Mail and Steamship Company. Its capital will be $4,000,000. Of this $3,000,000 is stated to have been already subscribed. The remaining million dollars of stock is intended to be offered to the public—but not until all arrangements for active operations shall have been completed, and the steamers of the company are ready to sail for the Pacific Ocean, so that subscribers can see for themselves the extent and character of preparations provided for the service. It is rumored that the $3,000,000 already subscribed, includes considerable British capital. While we have no positive authority for this supposition, the rumor is not an unreasonable one, when we remember that one important influence of a competing steamer line on this route must be that of largely developing the business of the Panama Railroad Company, in which English capitalists are already heavily interested. Indeed, it is stated that Mr. Aspinwall's personal and business relations with English holders of the railroad company's stock are close and confidential, and that he holds the proxies of a large majority of them to represent their interests in the company. The capacity of the Panama Railroad for carrying both passengers and freight has never yet been developed. That it could double its present earnings if sufficient business were offered it, no one can doubt; and it is easy to see that the hope of ultimately effecting such a result would constitute a powerful incentive to either foreign or domestic holders of the railroad stock to multiply steamship connections even with a moderate margin of profits on the ocean service. Experience has shown that the railroad company profits materially by each augmentation of steamer service between Europe and the Isthmus, and that too without any reduction in the rate of steamer freights, and while the increase of business grows chiefly out of traffic between Europe and South America and the States of Central America. It is argued that the railroad company would derive tenfold greater advantages than these from the establishment of additional steamer through-communication between the Atlantic and Pacific States, and such a reduction of freight rates as would divert a large percentage of the carrying trade from its present channel via Cape Horn, at the same time opening Eastern markets more freely to the Pacific coast productions, thus in turn stimulating production at the far "far West," promoting emigration thither, and increasing constantly its capacity to buy supplies at the East, and to furnish both freighting and passenger traffic to the steamer lines.

The directors of the new company, it is understood, will consist of Wm. H. Aspinwall and S. W. Comstock, of the original Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and six other well-known men, two of whom probably will be Californians. The statement that Assistant Secretary of the Navy, G. V. Fox, has resigned to take the Presidency of the company, is fully confirmed. Capt. R. H. Pearson, long in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company on the Pacific, is offered the choice of ships in the new line, and Capt. Lapidge, recently disconnected from service in the old line, is to have another and will take out the first steamer, which is expected to sail from New-York early in March, to connect at Panama with passengers, leaving New-York about the 1st of May. It is proposed to run semi-monthly trips only at the beginning. Capt. Stout, who for many years had charge of steamer arrangements on the Isthmus, has gone there to perfect similar arrangements for the new line. Of course the Panama Railroad Company, as an organization, is bound to and will observe strict neutrality between all competing lines, granting no facilities to one which are not equally open to all others.

The "New-York and San Francisco Mail Steamship Company" begin their service with four side-wheel steamers of the well-known "Star Line" between this port and New-Orleans, viz.: Rising Star, Morning Star, Evening Star and Guiding Star. The first two of these are entirely new—the Rising Star having never yet been to sea. Their average tonnage, if we are correctly informed, is about 2,500 tons each, and it is claimed that those of them to be employed in the regular service on the Pacific will comfortably carry from 800 to 1,000 passengers, and from 1,000 to 1,600 tons of freight. It is a well-known fact that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Sonora, of only 1,616 tons, has frequently carried from 1,000 to 1,500 passengers, besides several hundred tons of freight. It will be understood that the passenger-carrying capacity of the steamers for Pacific service will be considerably enlarged by the addition of guards, which afford room for a double row of state-rooms on the main deck. Experience on board the later built, and remarkably fine ships of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company has shown that the inner row of state-rooms is not objectionable in a tropical climate. On the contrary, with proper arrangements for ventilation, they are often cooler than those opening on the guards, and thus exposed to the direct rays of the morning and evening sun.

The new company are also owners of four fine propellers. Two of these, the Mississippi and the Merrimac, are large, and when ready for sea will be able to carry as many passengers as their consorts in the Pacific. It is not necessary that they should carry as much freight, because the Panama Railroad brings from New-York deposits a great deal of merchandise upon the Isthmus to seek transportation there by steamer. It may well be doubted if these propellers can make as good time between New-York and Aspinwall as does the Henry Chauncey on the New-York; but it is claimed that the side-wheel steamers in the Pacific can make up the difference there by achieving a high rate of speed upon a comparatively small consumption of coal. We have thus given such facts in regard to the proposed new enterprise as we have been able to gather. Readers must judge for themselves whether it is likely or not to prove remunerative and permanent. That Mr. Aspinwall and his friends can inaugurate a powerful company is not to be doubted; whether they will do so others can decide as well as we. Californians of intelligence express their settled conviction that there is abundance of business for two first-class lines between New-York and San Francisco at handsomely remunerating rates. If so, there can be no question that the extension of such facilities will be of great value to the trading and traveling public on both sides the continent.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE HOMEWARD MARCH.

Arrival of the Ninety-sixth Regiment New-York Veteran Volunteers—Their Military History.

The Ninety-sixth New-York Veteran Volunteers arrived in this City yesterday morning, from Lynchburgh, Va., via City Point and Baltimore. The regiment, which numbers about four hundred officers and men, is under the command of Col. Stephen Moffitt, late in command at South Western, Va., was hospitably entertained by Mr. Frevost and his assistants, at the Soldiers' Depot, Nos. 50 and 52 Howard-street. During the afternoon the command departed for Hart's Island, for final muster and payment.

The Ninety-sixth was organized at Plattsburgh, N. Y., during the Fall of 1861, and left the rendezvous for the seat of war in March, 1862. On its arrival in Washington, the regiment was assigned a position in the Army of the Potomac, moving with it to Fortress Monroe, and afterward participating in the unfortunate Peninsular campaign under Gen. McClellan. In July, 1862, when the greater part of the Army of the Potomac left Harrison's Landing for Alexandria, on its way to reinforce Gen. Pope, who was fighting in the Virginia Valley, the Ninety-sixth became detached, and, with several other regiments, was sent to the army under Gen. Peck, who was holding Suffolk. They took part in many of the Union engagements in the memorable siege of Suffolk during the Summer and Fall of 1862.

In December, 1862, the Ninety-sixth joined the forces operating in the Department of the South, under Gen. Foster, being afterward engaged in the battles of Kinston, Whitehall and Goldsborough, in North Carolina. In this first battle the gallant Colonel of the regiment, Charles O. Gray, was killed while bravely leading his regiment in a desperate charge over the Kinston Bridge.

The Ninety-sixth remained in North Carolina during the year 1863, and were engaged in the defence of Newbern, the siege of Washington, and other engagements. In January, 1864, a majority of the men re-enlisted as veterans, and in the following March joined the Army of the James, under Butler, meeting with that army at Bermuda Hundreds in May, 1864. When the Eighteenth Army Corps, under Gen. Smith, moved to the White House to form connection with the Army of the Potomac, the Ninety-sixth formed part of the column, and on the 3d of June became engaged in the battle of Cold Harbor, where the regiment suffered a greater loss in killed and wounded than in any previous engagement, having six officers and one hundred and fifty men killed, and every officer present with the command except two, were wounded. After returning to the Army of the James, the Ninety-sixth found themselves in the advance, at the first attack upon Petersburgh.

On the 29th of September, 1864, when Gen. Butler made the advance on Fort Harrison which resulted in its capture, the Ninety-sixth was the first regiment to plant its colors on the parapet of that formidable thirty-gun battery. In the second battle of Fair Oaks, (usually known as the battle of Darbytown Road,) nearly half of the command were either killed, wounded or taken prisoners, and it was at this engagement that their commander, Col. Moffitt, was severely wounded and lost his leg. The Ninety-sixth Regiment remained in the line of intrenchments before Richmond, until the final movement of the armies operating against that city, in March, 1865, when it marched with the Twenty-fourth Corps in the pursuit of Lee, being present at the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox Hollow on the 9th of April. Since that time the regiment has been performing garrison and provost duty in and around Lynchburgh, Va. During its entire term of service the Ninety-sixth has had nearly three thousand names on its rolls, and now returns with scarcely four hundred.

Colonel, Stephen Moffitt; Lieutenant-Colonel, Geo. W. Hindes; Major, C. G. Babcock; Acting Adjutant, A. M. Stephen; Quartermaster, Allen Babcock; Surgeon, R. W. Brady; Chaplain, Nathan Wardner.

Captains—H. C. Buckman, W. B. Brokaw, (this officer received a severe wound in the breast in the charge upon Fort Harrison, from which he is still suffering;) M. E. Orr, Moses Gill, T. E. Allen, James McCarty.

First Lieutenants—O. P. Benson, C. H. Hogan, Thos. Burk, Curtis Bly, George S. Cady, W. B. Stafford, A. E. Howard and Lyman Bridges.

Second Lieutenants—J. C. Ware, Charles Sharraw, A. S. Richardson, G. W. Harris, Alex. McMartin, S. H. Bugbee and Ilias Finch.

FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

Provision for the Destitute—Two Hundred Men Wanting Work.

Notwithstanding the number of public benevolent institutions that are in active, useful existence in this City, there does not appear to be one too many, considering the poverty by which thousands of the people are oppressed. All are doing good; some more than others, varying according to the character of the discipline and general mode of treatment. Among them, the House of Industry is entitled to consideration owing to the vast amount of good which has been accomplished by it, and the facilities it possesses for the continuance of the good work.

At present not fewer than four hundred children are fed at the Five Points House of Industry every day, and a large proportion of these are provided with clothing and lodgings. They are also educated in the ordinary branches of an English education by competent and untiring teachers. It is a source of great satisfaction for the citizen to turn aside from the great thoroughfares of business and spend an hour at this centre around which revolves the machinery of benevolence acting upon the poor and lowly—making glad hearts and happy faces—dispelling sorrow and grief and hunger and nakedness, and making the once wretched countenances of the destitute to beam with joy, to blossom as the rose. The shining of a Summer sun after the weird storms of Winter is not more gladdening in its influence upon the human heart than is the sight of four hundred children of the poor brought together into one grand family to be recipients of the cheering benefits of the God-inspired loving kindness of those whose ways in life lie along smoother paths, and whose facilities for happy life are abundant. Such thoughts revolve in the mind when visiting the House of Industry and watching the children go through their gymnastic exercises to the music of the piano.

But there are grown-up people, also, who share in the benefits conferred by Superintendent Halliday at the Five Points House of Industry. Among them are men who have served their country in the battle-fields of the Union, many of them waiting for their back pay from the Government. To provide sleeping accommodations for about one hundred and fifty men, a wooden building in the middle of the open lot before the House of Industry, has been fitted up with tiers of bunks, and furnished with straw beds and bed-clothes. This temporary resting-place is eagerly sought for, and until it is full the station-houses remain empty, so far as the "lodger" element is concerned.

At this point there are at present not fewer than two hundred men able and willing to labor, but for whom there appears to be no demand. Many of them would make valuable workmen. Mr. Halliday can point any person who needs help to excellent men who are ready to go to work. The institution thus noticed is deserving of the support of people of philanthropic and benevolent dispositions.

Death of Major Joseph Ketchum Stearns.

Major Stearns was attached to one of the first cavalry regiments that went forth from this city to aid in putting down the late rebellion. He took an active part in raising the First New-York Cavalry, and, from its organization, he held the office of Captain, and subsequently, after most severe and active service, rose to the position of senior Major of his regiment, which he held to the close of the war, when he was honorably discharged by the War Department. Major Stearns was peculiarly distinguished for his activity and disregard of personal exposure to danger. He was engaged in many skirmishes and field fights. His bravery and dash made him a favorite of that gallant officer, so distinguished for these qualities, the late Gen. Kearny. In an official report of this officer, dated as early as March 13, 1862, to his superior, Gen. Franklin, he says: "I have also most particularly to compliment Capt. Stearns and his squadron of Lincoln Horse. The duty performed by this squadron was enormous, covering the entire country from near the Occoquan to the line of the Little River turnpike with boldness and address, evincing an alacrity to attack, and in this every non-commissioned officer and private rivalled his officer."

Major Stearns served through the whole Peninsula campaign, under Gen. McClellan, and during the seven days' retreat was not out of his saddle more than two or three hours at a time. His whole career was one peculiarly romantic.

Major Stearns was the only surviving son of the late John Stearns, M. D., not less distinguished in the walk of the medical profession, than for his works of philanthropy and his exemplary religious character.

Major Stearns was impelled by his ardent patriotism, although the head of a family consisting of a wife and four children, to enter the military service of the country when the government was in peril.

Few officers or privates in the army were in more perilous positions during the late war, yet he never received any bodily injury.

The war being over, and, like many others, being thrown out of civil employment, and being yet in the prime of life and vigor of manhood, the Major determined to seek occupation in the West. He went to Colorado, and there decided to enter into agricultural pursuits, which seemed to him to promise success. Only some two weeks ago he wrote to his family a cheerful and hopeful letter, but since the receipt of the letter a telegram from Denver City, Colorado, has been received, announcing the sudden death of the Major on the 3d inst. The telegram discloses little more than the melancholy fact, which has stricken with the deepest sorrow his interesting family and numerous relatives and friends.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

The Austrian International Agricultural Exhibition.—As some misapprehension exists in this country in relation to the award of prizes to exhibitors from foreign countries, it is important for American exhibitors to know that the Committee having charge of that exhibition, in order to correct this erroneous impression, has declared that prizes consisting of bronze and silver medals shall be made expressly for the exhibition and distributed among foreign as well as home exhibitors. Parties contributing to this exhibition, to be held, as already stated, at Vienna, opening May 17, 1866, under the patronage of the Archduke Charles Ludwig, of Austria, may make application to Messrs. Austin, Baldwin & Co., New-York, who have been commissioned to receive and forward articles for exhibition.

Personal.—Gen. John E. Mulford, whose name is familiar throughout the country, from his long and valuable services in connection with the exchange of prisoners during the war, is stopping at the Metropolitan Hotel. This is Gen. Mulford's first visit to New-York, his native State, since he left home in 1861, as a captain in the Third Regiment New-York Volunteers. Since the conclusion of the war Gen. Mulford has been engaged at Richmond, Va., in closing up the affairs of the Exchange Bureau, and his many friends will regret to learn that the severe labors incident to this work have impaired his general health so much that rest and relaxation have become a necessity to him.

The German Democracy.—The General Committee of the German Democratic Union Party organized on Thursday evening last at the Germania Assembly Rooms, by the election of the following officers for the ensuing year: President, John J. Freedman; Twenty-first Ward; Vice-Presidents, Valentine Cook, Twentieth Ward, and George Rauch, Eighth Ward; Recording Secretary, Frank Keiffert, Twenty-second Ward; Corresponding Secretary, Magnus Gross, Eleventh Ward; Treasurer, Dr. Wm. Schirmer, Fifteenth Ward.

Died from Injuries.—Humphrey Desmond, a boy 14 years of age, who was employed in a looking-glass frame manufactory, in Water-street, was on the 17th of November last caught in the belting of a wheel, which caused a compound fracture of the right arm, and inflicted other injuries. The boy was taken to the New-York Hospital and has since lingered there. Yesterday morning Desmond died from the effects of his injuries. Coroner Collin held an inquest, and a verdict of accidental death was recorded.

D., will deliver the first of a series of discourses to young men, to-morrow evening, at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, No. 164 Fifth-avenue. The Algonquin and Winooski.—The Winooski sailed from the Navy-yard at noon yesterday, and the Algonquin during the evening. BROOKLYN NEWS.

Sanitary Inspection of the City.—The Police are now engaged, under the direction of Inspector Folk, in examining the sanitary condition of the city, with the view of affording such information as may tend to enable the authorities to make provision against diseases that may be engendered by filthiness, &c., during the coming Summer. Twenty policemen are detailed for this purpose. They are required to see for what purposes a building may be used, its condition, the number of families, persons and sleeping-rooms in each. If a tenement-house, the number of cubic feet of each room, and the number of persons occupying each room. The cellars, population, and condition of both, ventilation and light, prevailing sickness, if any; condition of yard; description of any nuisance, their causes and remedies; means of escape from fire, &c., &c. The returns of a good portion of the Forty-second Police Precinct were presented yesterday, showing that portions of the First and Third Wards are in good condition.

Application for a New Trial in the Otero Case.—The General Term of the Supreme Court, before Hon. Judges Gilbert, Scrugham Lott, will commence the February term in the Kings County Court-house on Monday next, the 12th inst. The case of Gonzales and Salvador, convicted of the murder of Otero, will be brought up on that day on a writ of error, and a new trial applied for on the ground of the discovery of new and important evidence, tending to show the guilt of at least one party other than one of the two (Salvador) who was jointly indicted with Gonzales. The probabilities are that the decision will be given at an early day. Some other important matters will also be brought before the Court during the term.

Fire.—A fire occurred in the two-story dwelling-house of Mr. S. Tucker, situated at the corner of Fifth-avenue and First-street, South Brooklyn, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, resulting in damage to the building and the destruction of contents by fire and water combined, to the amount of $3,000. It appears that some plumbers were engaged in heating the water pipes, which were frozen, by burning a quantity of paper. The flames penetrated the ceiling between the floors, and thence spread rapidly and were soon beyond control. The loss is fully covered by insurance in the Howard Company of New-York.

The Brooklyn Firemen.—The ordinance of the city which requires that "no person other than a fireman, exempt fireman or policeman shall drag or run with, or assist in dragging, and fire-engine, hook and ladder or hose cart," having been of late years disregarded, is again to be enforced. The necessary orders were yesterday issued by Inspector Folk. During the war non-members, mostly boys, run the machines. Now that their services are no longer required, they are prohibited from taking hold of the ropes, or riding down hill on the apparatus, to the danger of life and limb.

The Reported Murder of Archy Hughes.—A letter received in this city from Mr. T. B. Prendergast, who is traveling professionally with Mr. Hughes in Canada, implies the falsity of the report that Mr. Hughes had been murdered by an ex-rebel Captain in Montreal. The letter is dated Quebec, Feb. 4, 1866, and states that the troupe left Montreal the night before, and that Hughes was still with them. No mention is made of any trouble, and the original story must therefore be a hoax.

Walked Out of Court.—George N. Wilson, convicted in the Court of Sessions yesterday on the charge of burglary, and sentenced to State Prison for two years and six months, quietly walked out of the Court-room with the jurymen, unperceived by the only officer on duty, and is now at large.

The Master Masons and Plasterers.—The master masons and plasterers of Brooklyn recently organized a society for the "mutual benefit and for the protection and interests of the trade," in order to counteract the movements of the journeymen, who demand $3 50, and 8 instead of 10 hours' labor per day.

The Brooklyn City Court.—The criminal term of the Brooklyn City Court came to a close yesterday, thirty cases having been disposed of during the week. The civil calendar will be taken up on the 19th inst.

LAW REPORTS.

Breach of Neutrality Laws.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Shipman.

In the case of Benjamin Vicuna MacKenna, indicted for an alleged violation of the neutrality laws in fitting out an expedition to take part in the war between Chili and Spain, Mr. Stoughton, his counsel, this morning, appeared before the court and desired that a day might be fixed upon which the court would hear his application to dismiss the whole proceedings on the ground of the privilege claimed by him as a representative of the Chilian Government.

The District Attorney, Mr. Dickinson, said he desired as early a day to be fixed as possible, and counsel for the defence expressed the same desire. In the course of the colloquy, Mr. Dickinson said that the Chilian Minister at Washington had sent a dispatch, unasked for as far as he was concerned, to say that Mr. MacKenna was not a representative of the Chilian Government.

Mr. Stoughton said that there was a mistake about that; the terms of the dispatch, as he understood it, were that Mr. MacKenna might not be considered to be such; but he himself had a letter, written by the Minister in his own hand, and under the seal of the Legation, informing Mr. MacKenna that he had been appointed Secretary of Legation. The Minister, he said, was a gentleman and a man of honor, and would not deny the facts which he stated.

Mr. Dickinson said he knew nothing about that letter, of course; he only wished an early day fixed for the hearing of the application; the law of the matter was very plain, and the facts must be very simple.

Mr. Stoughton agreed with him, and the Court said the matter might be brought up on Wednesday morning.

Reference was then made to the case of Dr. Rogers, indicted for a similar offence, and the Court ordered him to be brought up at the same time to plead to the indictment.

Replevin—The History of a Carriage.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART II.—FEB. 9.

Before Justice Clerke and a Jury.

Frederick Wood and Chas. Wood vs. Thaddeus M. Talcott.—The plaintiffs in this action are carriage manufacturers in this City; the defendant, in May last, was a resident of Buffalo, this State. In that month he came to this City, went to the plaintiffs' carriage warehouse, selected a $450 carriage, and said he would call in a day or two with the money to pay for it. Pursuant to agreement he did call, and then stated to one of the Messrs. Wood that he had not enough ready money with him to pay for the carriage, but said that his father was largely engaged in business in Buffalo in company with Mr. Dean Richmond; at the same time referring the plaintiffs to several large houses in that city with whom they were well acquainted. Defendant then said he would give plaintiffs a sight draft on his father, or if they preferred it, on Mr. Richmond, for the price of the carriage. Plaintiffs finally consented to take a sight draft on defendant's father, and shipped the carriage to Buffalo. The draft was sent on and came back protested. It appeared in evidence yesterday that defendant's father was a poor, laboring man in Buffalo, having no business connection whatever with Mr. Dean Richmond. It was also shown that the defendant was a young man of very bad reputation, and goes by the name of "Swindling Talcott" in the City of Buffalo. The history of the carriage is somewhat interesting. The plaintiffs have it now in their possession, much the worse for hard usage. Since it left them in May last, it has been three times replevined in Buffalo, in suits brought against the defendant by his creditors. Once it was stolen and the thieves got as far as Cleveland with it, when it was brought back. The Jury in this case rendered a verdict, by direction of the Court, that the plaintiffs are entitled to the possession of the carriage, and assessed the value thereof at $450.

Action against a Marine Insurance Company—Allegations of Fraud.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM—FEB. 9.

Before Judge Brady and a Jury.

Wm. Myers vs. The Washington Marine Insurance Company.—The plaintiff brings this action on a policy of insurance to recover the sum of $950. In August, 1864, plaintiff was the owner and captain of a boat known as the Flying Dutchman, and on that day, while she was on a trip from Belleville, N. J., to Philadelphia, loaded with stone, the boat came in collision with a draw in the bridge of the Morris and Essex Railroad over the Passaic River, and as plaintiff alleges, she was so badly injured that she immediately afterward sank to the bottom of the river. The plaintiff had an insurance on the boat in the defendant's company of $700, and $250 on the cargo. To recover this amount the action is brought. The principal defence is that the plaintiff was guilty of fraud in falsely representing to the Company's agents, at the time the insurance was effected, that the boat was sound, in good condition, and every way seaworthy; while, on the contrary, it was well known to the plaintiff that she was old, unsound, and wholly unfit to perform a voyage with such heavy freight as stone.

When the plaintiff rested, counsel for the defendants moved for a dismissal of the complaint on the ground that the evidence did not sustain the allegations in that pleading.

The Judge denied the motion.

The trial was not concluded at the adjournment of the Court. For plaintiff, Messrs. John Cook & Son; for defendants, Messrs. Doolittle & Davis.

"Monte Cristo" in Court and "Monte Cristo" on the Stage.

MARINE COURT—FEB. 9.

Before Judge Gross and a Jury.

George H. Andrews vs. John A. Duff and Matilda C. Wood.—In this action the plaintiff claimed that in the year 1848, he dramatized, and subsequently copyrighted the drama known as "Monte Cristo." That some time afterward he entered into an agreement with the defendants, Mrs. John B. Wood, otherwise known as Matilda C. Wood, and John A. Duff, who was connected with her in business, whereby it was agreed that plaintiff should be paid for his drama the sum of $10 per night, for every night the play in question was performed at the Olympic Theatre in this City. The bargain, it was alleged, was made by plaintiff with Mr. Selwyn, the business agent of Mrs. Wood. The play was continued at the theatre for about six weeks, but the plaintiff brought the suit to recover for only nine nights—in other words, he sought to recover the sum of $90.

The plaintiff was put upon the stand, and testified that he offered Mr. Selwyn his dramatized play of "Monte Cristo," at the same time telling him that it was being played in Philadelphia. This was last Autumn. Mrs. Wood and Mr. Selwyn went to Philadelphia to see it played. When they returned Mr. Selwyn took plaintiff's manuscript copy, and told him if it was played in their theatre in this city they would pay him the sum of $10 per night; that Mr. Selwyn kept the manuscript nearly three weeks, and then returned it to plaintiff; that he assigned as a reason for returning it that the negotiations which had been pending with Mr. J. W. Wallack, who was expected to take a part in it, had failed.

There was no question that the drama was played at the Olympic, but it seems that the fourth act of the play, as in plaintiff's manuscript, was either left out entirely, or so altered as to make it a very different act from the one proposed by the plaintiff.

When the plaintiff rested his case, Mr. Hall, counsel for defendants, said that he moved to dismiss the complaint on two grounds; first, he said the complaint ought to be dismissed as to Mr. Duff, for the reason that the testimony did not show that Duff was a copartner with Mrs. John Wood, or that he in any way shared in the losses and profits of the theatre. It was not even proved, counsel said, that he had any joint interest in any way or shape in the concern.

Judge Gross thought there was sufficient testimony in the case tending to show that Duff was interested with Mrs. Wood in the conducting of the theatre to an extent sufficient to make him liable as a co-defendant; if Mrs. Wood was liable, he thought Mr. Duff was also.

Mr. Hall then proceeded to argue his second point on the motion for a dismissal of the complaint. He insisted that there was no evidence in this case going to show that it was the plaintiff's dramatized play which was produced on the stage of the Olympic Theatre for the nine nights in question. The plaintiff had been on the stand, but counsel had neglected to ask him if the identical drama, which he, plaintiff, claimed to have produced, was the one played. On the contrary, it appeared that the fourth act of the plaintiff's production had been left out entirely, and that that act had been supplied by Mr. Selwyn, or some one in the immediate employ of the defendants. Dr. Powell had been put upon the stand, and he had testified that he had read the manuscript copy of the play under consideration; that he had seen it played in the old Broadway Theatre, and some years ago he had read the novel known as Monte Cristo, from which the play had been dramatized. This witness thought there was a difference in several respects.

Mr. Dodge, on behalf of the plaintiff, replied at considerable length to the argument of Mr. Hall. He contended that his client's version of "Monte Cristo" had in substance been played for nine nights at least, in the defendant's theatre. That it was not right for parties to agree to purchase the use of the manuscript for a specific sum, for a specified time, and then after they had reaped all the benefits they could from it, to turn around and say "we had your manuscript—we used your brains 'tis true—but you did not have the play perfect, according to our views, and although we agreed to pay you for what you gave us, we have seen fit to alter the play; therefore we will give you nothing."

At the conclusion of the argument the Court decided to dismiss the complaint, and did so.

For plaintiff, Mr. Dodge; for defendants, Mr. Hall.

MILLER, doing business at No. 45 Broad-street, made a charge of grand larceny against ROBERT HOGGINS, stating that he had, on the 2d of January, stolen a quantity of gimp and lace from his store, valued at $106 75. In his affidavit the complainant stated that HOGGINS had for some time been employed by him to write up his books, and that having access to the goods in the store, he had appropriated a portion to his own benefit. On being charged with the theft the accused confessed the fact, both to the owner and Officer BARKER, of the Fifteenth Precinct, who arrested him. The prisoner was committed for trial without bail. HOGGINS is 45 years of age and a native of England.

ROBBING A FRIEND.

MICHAEL O'GRADY, residing at No. 26 Amity-street, caused the arrest of SAMUEL RODGERS by Officer McCONNELL of the Fifteenth Precinct, on a charge of having stolen from his room, on the 9th of January, three coats and a small quantity of gold and silver coin, valued in the aggregate at $118. A portion of the stolen property was subsequently found in the pawnshop of JOHN LYNCH, in Grand-street. The accused was committed to answer the charge in default of $1,500 bail. He is a native of New-Hampshire, and is 29 years of age.

ROBBING AN EMIGRANT BOY.

JULIUS BECHER, a German boy aged 17 years, who arrived on Thursday from Europe by the steamer Bavaria en route for California, gave his trunk, containing a complete outfit, and valued at $100, to JOHN PHILLIPI, an express driver, with orders to deliver it at No. 85 Maiden-lane. When the driver stopped at the Prescott House, corner of Spring-street and Broadway, to deliver some baggage, a man named DENNIS RILEY took BECHER's trunk from the wagon. Officer QUINN, of the Eighth Precinct, witnessed the theft and arrested RILEY with the trunk in his possession. The prisoner was committed for trial without bail. The owner of the trunk was detained to prosecute the charge.

STREET ROBBERIES.

PATRICK MCLAUGHLIN, residing at No. 75 Elizabeth-street, appeared before the presiding Justice yesterday, and stated that while he was passing up the Bowery, near Prince-street, on Thursday evening, a man suddenly darted from a doorway and snatched his watch, valued at $35, from his vest pocket and attempted to escape, but was seized by the owner of the timepiece. Officer MCGLOIN, of the Fourteenth Precinct, came up and took the thief into custody. On inquiry the prisoner gave his name as WILLIAM JEFFERS, and the watch was found in his possession. The accused was committed for trial in default of bail. He is 20 years of age and a native of Staten Island.... A complaint was preferred by WILLIAM MONECKE, residing at No. 70 Greenwich-street, against JOHN GRAHAM, who was arrested by Officer SCHNEIDER, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct. From the complaint of Mr. MONECKE it appears that during Thursday evening he was passing through Greenwich-street, when he met GRAHAM and two or three others, and inquired the way to his residence, when GRAHAM volunteered to show him. While going down town, it is alleged, GRAHAM seized MONECKE by the neck, cut his watch chain and took from his pocket the watch, valued at $250, passing it to one of his confederates, who succeeded in getting off with his prize. The prisoner was committed for trial in default of $1,000 bail. GRAHAM is 17 years of age, and resides at No. 3 Washington-street.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Australasian, with advices to Jan. 28, arrived at this port yesterday. The British Parliament was to assemble on the 1st of February, but the formal opening by the Queen would not take place until the 6th. The daily trial and conviction of Fenian prisoners continued in Dublin. One of the prisoners, upon a verdict of guilty being returned against him, admitted that he had a fair trial and that honest men were on the Jury. The revolution in Spain had come to a close, Gen. PRIM, with 600 cavalry, having arrived at Barrancos, in Portugal. He had declared his readiness to give up his horses and accoutrements to a Spanish Commissioner. He was expected to embark immediately for England. The English and French papers continue to discuss the Emperor's speech. Several Chilian privateers were reported off Valencia. Russia is said to have solicited the friendly offices of the Prussian Cabinet to bring about a renewal of diplomatic relations between Russia and Rome, and Prussia has declared her readiness to comply with this request.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

By the arrival of the steamship New-York, from Aspinwall Feb. 1, we are in receipt of important news from South America. An offensive and defensive alliance has been formed between Chili and Peru, and the latter State has declared war against Spain. A Peruvian fleet had left to effect a junction with the Chilian fleet. All Spaniards residing in the province of Lima had received orders not to leave the country, and to have their names registered for surveillance. The Peruvian Government has also taken precautions to have reprisals at hand in case the Spanish fleet should take possession of any part of the coast, or inflict any other heavy damage. The mails from Valparaiso had not been received, but a sailing vessel at Callao, from the Southern coast, reported that the entire Spanish fleet was concentrated at Valparaiso; that the City was probably thoroughly blockaded, and that perhaps it had been attacked by the Spaniards. An attempted revolution in Panama had been frustrated. There is nothing important from Central America. All the States were at peace.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, after the presentation of one or two petitions, the credentials of GEORGE HOUSTON, Senator-elect from Alabama, were presented and ordered to lie upon the table. A resolution was offered for a committee to investigate charges against the cotton agents of the Treasury Department. The resolution was debated at some length, and before action was taken the morning hour expired, and the joint resolution to amend the Constitution was taken up. Mr. JOHNSON, of Maryland, spoke at length against the resolution. At 4 o'clock the Senate adjourned till Monday.

In the House over an hour was spent in the consideration of private bills. A memorial was introduced for the improvement of the Upper Mississippi. The Speaker laid before the House a message from the President, in reply to a resolution heretofore adopted, stating that it would be incompatible with the public interests to communicate the record or report of the Judge Advocate-General in relation to the charges pending against JEFFERSON DAVIS and other rebel leaders, the evidence being merely ex parte, and intended for the President alone. The House then took up the Senate's amendments to the bill amendatory of the act to establish the Freedmen's Bureau, and concurred in the amendments. The Naval Appropriation Bill was then taken up and passed. A bill to extend the benefits of the Army Appropriation Bill to officers of volunteers, was referred to the Military Committee.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday, Mr. LENT presented a remonstrance against granting to owners or lessees of wharves and slips in New-York exclusive use of the same. A communication from the Law-office Commissioners was presented adverse to the Stockbridge Indians. A bill was noticed to prevent the throwing of ashes and other substances in streets and other public places in New-York. A bill was introduced to incorporate the Fulton Ferry and West Thirty-second-street Railroad, New-York; also to authorize the sale of the quarantine grounds on the eastern shore of Staten Island, and for the purchase of quarantine lands elsewhere.

In the Assembly, Mr. CONABOY reported the Metropolitan Health Bill, with amendments. Mr. BERRYMAN presented a minority report. The subject was made the special order for Tuesday morning. A resolution was offered by Mr. JEWETT concurring in the resolution of the Select Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, requesting Hon. E. D. MORGAN, of the United States Senate, and Hon. H. J. RAYMOND, of the House, to urge upon the favorable consideration of Congress the memorial of the officers of the United States Navy asking for an increase of pay. A bill was introduced authorizing the New-York Supervisors to raise money by tax; also a bill confirming the act of the New-York Common Council extending the track of the Third-avenue Railroad.

GENERAL NEWS.

A suit against the United States Telegraph Company, tried at Detroit last week, resulted in a verdict of $47 40 for plaintiff. It appears that in May last, JULIUS RHAMBA, employed as a cigar-maker at Detroit, being anxious about his family, telegraphed them at Yonkers, N. Y., and receiving no reply after three days, started for Yonkers, where he discovered no dispatch had been received. Just on the point of return to Detroit the dispatch came to hand, having been mailed from Albany. RHAMBA sued for cost of dispatch ($2) and traveling expenses to Yonkers and return.

A severe accident occurred on the Flemington Railroad, New-Jersey, on Wednesday evening. The accommodation line which leaves Trenton for Lambertville and Flemington at 7 o'clock ran off the track, owing to the breaking of a rail between Copper Hill and Flemington. The locomotive was crossing a bridge at the time, and was precipitated over the side and demolished, an explosion of the boiler taking place. The engineer was killed and the fireman was very severely scalded. Fortunately the coupling between the locomotive and the forward car broke, which saved the train from being thrown over the embankment.

A gentleman who has just returned to Mobile from a trip among the planters in the river counties in Central Alabama, reports that since the 1st of January negroes have been anxious to contract, and have been taken by planters at fair prices, and that the demand for labor is so great through that section that he did not see or hear of a single unemployed freedman during his trip. Numbers of negroes have voluntarily left Mobile for the purpose of going to work upon plantations in the cotton-raising districts of the State.

The Chicago Republican says that Miss ELLEN O'MAHONEY, Head Centress of the Fenian Sisterhood, is not, as is generally supposed, the wife, daughter, or sister of the Irish Chief, JOHN O'MAHONY. For many years she was Principal of the High School at Quincy, and added to her reputation as a teacher by her essays and other productions presented to the Teachers' State Conventions. In 1863 she went to Chicago, and was made an assistant of the Kinzie School.

A disturbance recently occurred at Pontotoc, Miss., resulting in the death of an officer in charge of the Freedmen's Bureau in that place. From reports it appears that a large party in Pontotoc became incensed against the bureau and engaged in riotous proceedings. It is said the agent of the bureau was murdered in his bed and that his assailants declared their animosity against the United States, saying they had not yet had war enough and still wanted to fight against the Government.

News from the Rio Grande to the 2d inst. is received. Nothing of importance has transpired since the previous dates. The examination of the Bagdad affair and the arrests of parties implicated continue. It was reported that CORTINAS had been appointed by President JUAREZ as general-in-chief of the Liberal army. A French man-of-war had arrived at the mouth of the river, and two thousand French troops were expected.

Counterfeit $20 bills on the First National Bank of Indianapolis have been detected in New-Orleans. In the signature of the President, the writing resembles that of a man palsied, and is badly executed, and the numbers of the bills are put on by hand, and not by machinery or figure types, as in the genuine. The two vignettes, on the right and left, are much coarser than those on the good bills, and the lines and figures on the back are also coarse.

A heavy defalcation has been brought to light in the office of the United States Sub-Treasurer in San Francisco, committed early in January by WILLIAM MACY, cashier in the office. So far as discovered the defalcation amounts to about $80,000, of which $9,000 is in currency and the balance in gold. The defaulter has absconded to parts unknown.

The work on the railroad bridge at Albany has progressed so far that the first train over it is designed to start on Tuesday next. We understand that the Company intends celebrating the affair, and for this purpose have invited nearly all the prominent railroad men between New-York and St. Louis.

About 9½ o'clock on Thursday night a fire broke out in the kerosene oil works of H. E. BROWN, known as the Kingsland Oil Company, at Newtown Creek. The treating house, with all its machinery, was destroyed, involving a loss of $25,000, which is partially covered by insurance.

The iron manufacturers of Pittsburgh have been compelled, as stated by them, to reduce the wages of journeymen on account of the great decrease of business. Many of the workmen have refused to work on the lower wages, and some of the mills have temporarily stopped.

A fire occurred at Hilton Head on the 7th inst., destroying a large amount of grain and forage belonging to the Government, together with the adjoining buildings. A heavy rain-storm prevailed at the time, probably saving the town from entire destruction.

Eight United States soldiers at Nashville, Tenn., convicted on the 8th inst., of robbery and assault, were drummed out of service, to serve their various terms of imprisonment, ranging from five to seven years.

The Maryland Legislature adjourned on the 8th. The attempts to amend or repeal the registration laws, were not successful. In the Senate the House bill to allow colored persons to testify in courts of justice, was laid upon the table.

Reports from Independence, Mo., say that quite a number of bushwhackers have threatened to attack the jail and release one of their number confined there. It is said that troops have been sent from Fort Leavenworth to preserve peace.

From St. Marys, C. W., a dispatch is received stating that Mr. PHELPS, agent of the American Express Company, has absconded, taking twelve thousand dollars.

The Pennsylvania Legislature has appropriated $500,000 for the relief of the citizens of Chambersburgh who suffered losses from the rebel raid in October, 1862.

The steamer St. Nicholas, with 500 bales of cotton, was sunk in the Tombigbee River on the 5th inst.

A large tobacco warehouse in New-London, Conn., containing some $20,000 worth of tobacco, was destroyed by fire on the 8th inst.

Communication between Augusta and Savannah, Ga., by railroad, was opened on the 26th ult., and the cars were running.

Major-Gen. SHERMAN visited Detroit on Wednesday last, and was enthusiastically received by the citizens and municipal authorities.

LOCAL NEWS.

Three street robberies were committed during Thursday evening. WILLIAM JEFFERS ran out of a doorway in the Bowery and seized the watch of PATRICK MCLAUGHLIN, but was arrested before he could pass the property over to a confederate. JOHN GRAHAM volunteered to show WILLIAM MONECKE the way to No. 70 Greenwich-street, and on the road stole the watch belonging to Mr. MONECKE, passing it to a confederate, who escaped. DENNIS RILEY stole from an Adams Express wagon, standing in front of the Prescott House, a trunk belonging to JULIUS BREMER, a young German who had just arrived from Europe. All three of the prisoners were committed for trial.

The evening school of the Fifth Ward was closed for the season, by appropriate exercises, last evening, in School-house No. 44. A large number of the parents and friends of the pupils attended, and were delighted with the recitations, dialogues and songs of the evening. Mr. JOHN HEWITT, President of the Fifth Ward School Board, presided, and Commissioner DUPIGNAC and Ex-Commissioner TUTHILL presented diplomas to the pupils who had won certificates of good conduct and good scholarship. The attendance at this school has risen, within four years, from about 400 to 1,000.

A suit involving to some extent the rights of play-writers, and the liabilities of theatrical managers, was on trial yesterday in the Marine Court before Judge GROSS and a Jury. The parties were Mr. ANDREWS plaintiff, who claims to have dramatized the novel of Monte Cristo, and Mrs. JOHN B. WOOD and JOHN A. DUFF, defendants. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony a motion was made to dismiss the complaint, which, after a long argument, was granted by the Court.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge BARNARD, yesterday, three prisoners were sentenced to the State Prison, and two to the Penitentiary. The Grand Jury adopted a resolution relative to the recent collision in the Bowery, urging the proper authorities to pass an ordinance at once, requiring the express cars going through the city to have lights attached at night, so as to insure the safety of life and limb of the citizens.

The Ninety-sixth Regiment New-York Veteran Volunteers arrived in this city yesterday morning from Lynchburgh, Va., via City Point and Baltimore. France and Mexico—The Good Faith of the Emperor's Speech.

It is a coincidence not likely to escape observation, that those who seem most disposed to throw doubt upon the bona fides of the French Emperor belong especially to that class whose aim for five full years has been the disintegration of the American Republic. It is a poor beginning to start—in proof of this—with Mr. JOHN MITCHEL. But that traveled personage, with all his vagaries, has a certain representative character. He has endeavored to be against the Governments of nearly all the leading Powers of the world from the time he was first heard of. And if he writes letters from Paris to-day to tell us that the Chief of the French nation is simply making fools of the American people in promising to withdraw his troops from Paris, we may be sure the correspondent aims at an international upheaval or some other upheaval which shall relieve him from his present obscurity.

But there are people of more account than Mr. MITCHEL among us, who conceive it to be their duty to speak of the Sovereign of a powerful and friendly nation in terms which in social life would only be applied to the mountebank or the juggler. The Emperor of the French, according to this class of malicious visionaries, constitutes in himself a force which we ought to abuse and discredit, while holding the nation he represents in the profoundest respect. It would be altogether a waste of labor to attempt to meet these aspersions, were it not clear that they have their inspiration in the efforts of mere partisans to throw discredit upon the conduct of our foreign affairs; and are evidently meant, by such organizations as employ MITCHEL, to revive domestic trouble among ourselves.

The case has been simple from the beginning, so far as our relations with France are concerned. The State Department declined making a quartette in the partnership of September, 1861—not from any dislike to join France, England and Spain in any enterprise which should promise fair and honorable returns, but from a sense of what was due by the most powerful of the Republican Governments of the American Continent where the destiny of a sister Republic was concerned. In the very crisis of a domestic war, this honorable position was never deviated from for a single moment. We struggled against rebellion as well as we could—sometimes under skies as black as midnight—but in the extremest hour the true men who conducted our international affairs never faltered even for an hour when the question of continental independence in the Western hemisphere was at stake. The Secretary of State at Washington was neither more nor less complaisant in this Mexican imbroglio when LEE was leading his forces northward across the upper fords of the Potomac, than he was when the final surrender of LEE sealed the fate of the rebel Confederacy. As there was neither craven-heartedness nor abnegation of principle in the hour of apparent weakness, so likewise is there to-day no villainous misgivings in the hour of complete triumph. Our business now is simple. We are unfit to have allies if we cannot trust them. France has maintained a friendly position, and we must either trust what she proclaims, or cease to maintain the semblance of a hollow friendship. If we have endured grievances ourselves at the hand of Mexico, we must be prepared to admit that other nations may also have endured grievances, if not identical with our own, at least of a kind sufficient to justify their demanding and enforcing redress.

All we have had a right to protest against has been the continuance of an intervention which aimed at political propagandism; and the moment we have the fair and frank assurance that this presumptive object is disavowed, we are bound by all the laws which bind independent communities together in honorable friendship, to accept without cavil and without dispute such declarations as those of the Emperor of the French.

The antecedents—looking to Italy and the "exterior" relations of the Empire generally—of the Sovereign of France, moreover, justify us in this faith, were we otherwise prompted to cast doubt upon his words. The hope of Mexican regeneration has not been entirely distant from the thoughts of other statesmen than the Emperor. And the question is one which may recur—and which must recur—to other minds, after the last French soldier shall have left the soil of Mexico.

Star Worship.

The business of the Legislature of a great country ought not to be lightly suspended, and should never be suspended for the mere purpose of "honoring" the servants of that Legislature, no matter how illustrious or how deserving the recipients of such "honors" may be. We have quietly passed over a dozen or more of such ovations, but the business is becoming a bore—to use a local vulgarism, it is "run into the ground." We Americans hold in lofty contempt the deference to office and rank which prevails in most European Governments, and we crow vociferously over the assumption that the everlastingly free and glorious people of this Republic are, collectively and individually, sovereigns of the first water; that we have no Baal of Rank, and bow to no mortal idol; and yet we are often the most abject toadies on earth, as the record of the present Congress has proved. For what reason, good reader, is the business of the United States Congress suspended when Lieut.-Gen. GRANT happens to drop in at either House? Who made Mr. GRANT a lieutenant-general? Why, Congress. Who keeps him in place, and pays him his salary? The people, through their representatives in Congress. What is the relative rank of Gen. GRANT and the Speaker of the House? The first commands (under the President) the armies of the United States; the latter presides over the great power (the House) of the Republic, and may at any moment, under certain contingencies, be President of the United States; the one is the servant—the other is (or should be) relatively the master, as representing the only actual power—the people.

We might have passed over the flattery of Gen. GRANT and Gen. SHERMAN, admitting that their great services should plead in extenuation of congressional eulogy; but when the members of the House come down from commander-in-chief to second or third rate generals, and the vitally important business of legislation is suspended the moment an officer in army uniform make his appearance at the door, it is time to protest. Yesterday there were three interruptions of this kind, on behalf of very good men, no doubt; but the whole matter is most absurd and childish. From a seat, second only to that of the President of the Union, the Speaker of the House comes down to utter common-place compliments, and the gaping rulers of a great nation bow in abject deference to the beings of their own creation.

Let us have no more of this. Excepting only the President himself, there is no man—general or particular—entitled to more than simple courtesy in Congress, or anywhere else. If the people choose to make fools of themselves by running after great men, indulging this unmanly tendency to hero-worship, it is no reason for a similar exhibition on the part of their representatives. We can readily appreciate the enthusiasm that will spring up in the presence of a truly great man; but we also appreciate how thoroughly ashamed we ought to be of such exhibitions as we are now alluding to. Certainly it does not become the United States Congress to lead the way in establishing a system of man-worship, alike unnatural to our theory of government and ridiculous to the representatives and to the people.

The President and the Negroes.

A Brooklyn paper is disgusted with both the recent speeches of President JOHNSON—that to the negroes and that to the Montana Delegation. The latter "was remarkable for the number of its words and the paucity of its meaning," and "betrayed a sad lack of appreciation of the temper of the American people, or else a motive which at present we (the Brooklyn paper) do not care to mention." The speech to the negroes "lacked the simplicity, the dignity, and the clearness of the statement addressed to him" by "the gentlemen to whom this work was delegated," and who "presented clearly, simply, and with dignity, the facts on which they based their claims." Furthermore, we are told, the President's reply "was bolting in its commencement, roundabout in its method, and barren in its conclusions."

It is certainly hopeless to attempt to controvert such critics as this on matters of opinion: and as to the contrast between the "dignity" of President JOHNSON's address and that of the worthy negro who was the spokesman of the delegation, we have nothing whatever to say.

We must remark, however, that these two speeches of the President seem to us to contain a number of constitutional, social and philosophical truths which it would be well if both whites and negroes would remember and act upon. To the Montana delegation he expounded certain liberal and noble principles of our political structure, which, in times like these, are too apt to be overlooked or ignored; and to the negro delegation he gave some advice, so kind, so just, so discreet and so far-seeing as to form a complete guide for the action of their race. They have, of course, the liberty to ignore it, along with other liberties which President JOHNSON has helped them to procure; and their special partisans have equal liberty to flatter their vanity, and urge them to spurn the advice given; but it remains to be seen whether the future history of the negro race will justify their course or his.

DEPOPULATION OF NEW-YORK.—Three of the leading journals of this city, in view of the enormity of rents and the famine prices of food, have urged all who can remove from New-York to do so. We should be slow to give such advice. It is quite true that house-rent and the comforts of life are cheaper in Philadelphia than here; and it is quite certain that Philadelphia is glad to get inhabitants, and offers great inducements to people of small means who desire to live in comfort. She is no less anxious to get a few thousands of our enterprising people than she is to get our Southern and Western trade, and will build just as many houses and stores as a reasonable profit can be realized upon. It is quite true that Boston is in many respects a more desirable place for honest and economical people than New-York; and, in short, it is true that there is hardly a less desirable place than New-York for such a class. But still we would not add our labors to those of landlords and traders to drive population away from the city. We desire to see built up on this island a great metropolis—active, intelligent, prosperous and populous. Rather than drive people away from it, and thus retard its growth and impoverish it, we would do what we could to make a residence in it attractive and desirable. We think the evils under which its people now groan are but temporary, and that by-and-by we shall have cheaper food and houses. If we did not think so, we should be compelled to join our cotemporaries to urge folks to fly from it as soon as possible, and take up their quarters in Philadelphia, or on the prairies, or anywhere beyond the limits of the island of Manhattan.

Arrival of the Governor-General of Canada.

Lord MONCK arrived in this City yesterday, (by the Australasian,) on his way to Canada, where he will at once resume his functions as Governor-General of the Provinces. Since his departure for England on a temporary leave of absence, a ministerial crisis has occurred in Canada, and it may be presumed he returns with special instructions from the Colonial Office in reference to the changes in the personnel of the Ministry that have intervened. The seceding member of the Canadian Cabinet (Mr. BROWN) would have weakened the coalition more, if his place had not been promptly filled by an influential member of the party to which Mr. BROWN himself belongs. It is not likely in these circumstances that Lord MONCK's return will affect in any immediate way the relative strength of the opposing parties in the Provincial Parliament. The Lower Province supports the coalition in the proportion of three to one.

Sharp Work with the Fillibusteros.

The Government is making short work with the fillibusters on the Rio Grande and their sympathizers. Gen. CRAWFORD has been for some time in limbo, and this morning we learn of the arrest of his Adjutant, Col. REED, and also of Capt. SINCLAIR, of the "Liberal" army—the former charged with complicity in the Bagdad affair, and the latter with violating the neutrality laws. We also learn that Gen. WEITZEL has been superseded in command of the Rio Grande District, and that other changes have been made. Further we learn that the Provost-Marshal is busy arresting and disarming all suspicious parties in Brownsville and its neighborhod. Still further we are told that four pieces of artillery, taken from Bagdad by the "Liberals" or fillibusters, have been seized by the United States Collector of Customs.

This is doing that business up pretty promptly and quite effectually. We should think that these gentlemen have learned by a severe lesson that the destinies of the United States—the question of war or peace—are not in their control. They have been taught this in such a way as to stop decisively their fillibustering work. We shall have no more of it on the Rio Grande.

A POSITIVE SPEAKER.—Mr. Speaker TREMAIN, of the New-York Assembly, must have been born to fame. His decisions will be quoted—by way of illustration. Yesterday the New-York Health Bill was brought into the Assembly, primarily on a majority report embodying the dictations of the recent caucus. That was all right. But a solitary member of the Committee disagreed with his compeers, and had the presumption to offer a minority report. Then Mr. TREMAIN loomed. He told the audacious member that he could not be recognized—that minorities could not be heard without express permission. Mr. LITTLEJOHN, some time Speaker himself, demurred to this Taney-like decision, and ventured to say that "minorities had rights which white men were bound to respect." Then Mr. Speaker TREMAIN induced a substitute (Mr. PITTS) to sit in his chair, while he came down to the floor to defend as a member his decision as an officer. The good sense of the House finally rebuked this oratorical Speaker, and Mr. LITTLEJOHN's motion to entertain the minority report was adopted. One may pardon a little for the first flush of unexpected power, but when it comes to "bucking and gagging" the unfortunate wretch who does not see through the prescribed spectacles, the affair becomes not only ludicrous, but serious. If Mr. Speaker TREMAIN may refuse a report that does not please his High Mightiness, why may he not reject a vote which does not quite satisfy his Loftiness? A bewildered nation pauses for an answer.

LET THEM GO!—The Montgomery (Ala.) Mail is terribly afflicted about the order issued by Gen. SHERIDAN prohibiting emigration from New-Orleans to Mexico or South America. It thinks the order may have two interpretations; but "if its object is to prevent our people, who are casting longing eyes toward the beautiful valleys of Mexico, from leaving a land whose peace is rent by violent factions, and threatened with a conflict of races, we have only to say that it would be an oppression such as the world never saw before. The writ of ne exeat regno has never been exercised by a civilized nation except in war. It was a powerful lever for tyranny in barbarous ages, but has become obsolete in the law of modern nations. Does the United States intend to restore it?"

After all this, and after showing that the defeated Poles and Frenchmen and Italians may seek new homes in foreign climes, but that the "men who desire to leave the South are bound in by a wall of bayonets and by the sea; and the last hope of erecting the lares and penates in a foreign land is dispelled;" the Mail utters the following pathetic appeal:

> "Will not President JOHNSON let us go, if we desire to do so? We will borrow no ear-rings and jewelry like the children of Israel; and will not even ask for a return of our own. We have labored faithfully for a Government which remembers not GEORGE WASHINGTON—and have been taxed sorely. Will the President not let us go?—out of the land of iniquity and the house of bondage. Our fields are desolated! Our cattle and stock are being killed up by a murrain of niggers and soldiers! The lice have covered the land! Our first born lies dead in every house! May we not go out? We will leave behind us our jewelry, our maid servants and man servants, our oxen and our asses, and all that we have, provided we can have the benefit of that cloud by day and that pillar of fire by night, to separate hope for the future from the memories of the past!"

Some of our readers may think that this is sarcastic or ironical writing; but we assure them that it is not. Its spirit is serious—its pathos genuine.

We feel perfectly assured that President JOHNSON has no desire to detain in any part of this country people who entertain such desperate feelings as are here expressed. Let them go from their desolated fields and from the lice that cover their land. Let them take their jewelry and their oxen and their asses; let them take even their maid-servants and man-servants, if the latter are willing to go. We fancy there are but few people in the South who have such feelings; but all will feel better after they leave.

THE NATIONAL MILITIA.—In urging, as we have done, the limitation of our regular standing army to a very small figure, we by no means imply that our country should be left in a defenceless state, or in a state at all approaching it. The national militia is the true and permanent defence of this Republic. This force has served a great and valuable purpose in times past. It ought to be made still more available and efficient in the future. Each of the States should take the most approved measures for bringing it into a high condition, and retaining it permanently in such condition, and for bringing into its ranks, for at least a part of their life, all able-bodied citizens. The central power at Washington should also have some general supervision of it, that thus it might be made more distinctively national than formerly in its character and control. Dangers of war in the future—may they be far off!—are not likely to be domestic, but foreign. There is no power we could show to the nations of the world which would make these dangers less likely—and less damaging, if realized—than a well-drilled, well-disciplined and patriotic militia, numbering between two and three millions of men, and under national control. Such a force would be a great peace-keeper between us and the world, and it is such a force we must look to as the main army of the future. THOMAS JEFFERSON astutely remarked that "none but an armed nation can dispense with a standing army."

THE NEW SOUTH.—We learn from the New Orleans papers that the demand for labor there in every department of mechanics is such as to absorb the entire supply. Never, since the first settlement of New-Orleans, has it been greater than it now is. One paper says that the mechanics and laboring men are a greater power than ever before, and that they are "educating and elevating themselves, and are maintaining an unbroken front in their efforts to break down the barriers that have hitherto opposed their rapid progress in social and political position." Those who are so greatly exercised lest things in the South revert to their former condition, and who fear that the old slaveholding aristocracy will again resume their former sway, should consider a fact like this. We hear the same thing of other parts of the South. A new class is coming into power; new ideas are gaining the supremacy. It must be so; for that upon which the old caste was based, and which gave it power, has passed away forever.

ALL ABOUT NEUTRALITY.—A correspondent, who signs himself "Justice," frets about the following topic—asking whether the incident is an illustration of neutrality: "A party," he says, "arrested at 2 A. M., with six large dry goods cases of military equipments and ammunition belonging to the Fenian army, is discharged, and the property restored to him, on the representation of Mr. Head-Centre O'MAHONY that the goods belonged to him." Is it possible that "Justice" don't see through the little advertising dodge which he views with such alarm? Those packing-cases were worth a good deal, no doubt, in pushing the sale of Fenian bonds. Nor was it a bad idea.

THE TWENTY-SECOND OF FEBRUARY.—Isn't it about time for the true Union men of the City to make arrangements for a becoming celebration of Washington's Birthday. We have had but one WASHINGTON, and those who honor him as he ought to be honored should rejoice in the opportunity to perpetuate his memory, his services, and his virtues.—Express.

A proper inquiry, but from a queer source. The Express has been so long sympathizing with disunionists, that it must be estranged from "true Union men." We had indeed but "one WASHINGTON," and in his Farewell Address he admonished us "to frown indignantly upon the first dawning of an attempt to divide the the Union." What have those who, like the Express, disregarded this injunction, to do with Washington's Birthday?

AMUSEMENTS.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The experiment of an early matinée will be tried to-day by Mr. MARETZEK. The performance, instead of commencing at 1, begins at 11 o'clock—the doors opening an hour earlier. There are undoubtedly many visitors to the city who will be pleased with this change. It enables them to go direct from the cars to the Academy in all the pristine freshness of their toggery, and leaves them time to do their shopping afterward. Whether it will work equally well with the City folk remains to be seen. Matinées are, however, the rage, and at any hour they are likely to be well attended. The opera to-day is "Crispino è la Comare"—the most popular work in the repertoire. The beautiful decorations used at the Arion Ball are retained for this occasion, and will undoubtedly interest the lady folk, who are cunning in these things.

SYMPHONY-SOIREE.—Mr. THEODORE THOMAS gives his fourth symphony-soiree at Irving Hall to-night. The programme is particularly satisfying and ranges from BEETHOVEN down to WAGNER, or, as some would put it, from WAGNER down to BEETHOVEN. WAGNER, at all events, supplies a piquant morsel in his introduction to "Tristan and Isolde." Critics will fall upon it with various appetite, according to the strength of their æsthetic stomachs. We are sharpening a tooth for it ourselves. Another novelty, but in a widely different direction, is MOZART's concerto for two pianos, played by Messrs. S. B. MILLS and WM. MASON. The orchestra plays also BEETHOVEN's Fifth Symphony and SCHUMANN's fine overture to "Manfred." Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS is the vocalist, and will sing an air by HANDEL, and an aria by MOZART.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—Miss KATE BATEMAN will appear at a grand matinée performance of "Leah" to-day, commencing at the usual hour. The same character will be repeated in the evening for the last time. Miss BATEMAN's engagement is drawing rapidly to a close; ending indeed with the next week. Her friends will be glad to learn that before taking her departure she intends playing two of her best characters, Bianca in the "Italian Wife" and Pauline in the "Lady of Lyons." In Europe she has won much applause in these characters.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The usual rehearsal (No. 10) takes place at the Academy of Music to-day, commencing at 3 o'clock.

BENEFIT.—A grand operatic, dramatic and concert performance in aid of disabled soldiers will be given at the Academy of Music to-night. A full orchestra of sixty performers, under the direction of Messrs. ANSCHUTZ and BUSCHEL will take part in the entertainment.

NEW-YORK CIRCUS.—To-day at 2:30 o'clock there will be a specialty for the edification and delight of the little people. Mr. ROBINSON will ride his terrific hurdle act, and LEVI J. NORTH, with his pretty little adjuncts, the petite boys and girls, will contribute the "Sprite of the Silver Shower." The daylight exhibitions at the Fourteenth-street circus have become exceedingly popular, and most undoubtedly profitable to the management.

The Mount Hope Asylum Case.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Feb. 9.

The Mount Hope Insane Asylum case progresses slowly. To-day the prosecution again attempted to proceed with the examination of the witnesses. The case attracts much attention.

Alliance Between Peru and Chili—Peru Declares War against Spain—The Peruvian Fleet Gone to Join the Fleet of Chili—Concentration of the Spanish Fleet at Valparaiso—Expected Attack on Valparaiso.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

PANAMA, Thursday, Feb. 1, 1866.

The British steam packet Peru, connecting with the French line at Aspinwall for St. Nazaire, arrived at this port on the 30th ult. She brings no dates from Valparaiso, but by a sailing vessel from that port to Callao a few items from Chili have been received. The Spanish fleet had abandoned all the Chilian ports except that of Valparaiso, where a thorough blockade has probably been established, which will prevent any vessel from entering or leaving, and as soon as the news of the determination of the Queen of Spain to carry on the war reaches the commander of the Spanish fleet, it is more than likely that Valparaiso will have to suffer for the capture of the Covadonga.

PERU.

A treaty of alliance, offensive and defensive, has been made between Chili and Peru, and the latter Power has declared war against Spain. Don DOMINGO SANTA MARIA, who went to Lima before the fall of PEZET, and who, as the agent of Chili, contributed greatly to make the revolution against PEZET a success, has been busily at work with PRADO, the Dictator of Peru, since his accession to power, to bring about this result. The treaty was concluded on the 5th of December, and ratified on the 14th of January. On the latter day, with a great display of military, to the music of the regimental bands, and amid the acclamations of the thousands assembled on the great Plaza, the declaration of war against Old Spain was solemnly proclaimed.

The Amazonas and Apurimac, two fine frigates, the latter of 44 guns, with the Maipu, a smaller vessel, left the port of San Antonio on the 26th December to join the Chilian fleet at Chiloe, and on the 18th January the two new corvettes, Union and America, lately brought out from England, left Callao with full crews for the same destination. The concentration of the Spanish fleet at Valparaiso is doubtless due to this fact, as the acting Admiral of Queen ISABELLA has no idea of letting any more of his vessels fall into the trap which snapped up the Covadonga, under Admiral PAREJA, his unfortunate predecessor.

The Peruvian fleet, beside the four vessels named above, consists of only some little steamers and dispatch-boats, with two or three old sailing vessels of but little use, while the Chilian fleet has of effective vessels only the Esmeralda, 18 guns; the Covadonga, of 4 guns, captured from the Spaniards, and the little steamer Maipu. Several Chilian agents are now in the United States and other parts of the world, endeavoring to increase this fleet, and with what success we shall soon know. As the combined fleet now stands, it has but little chance against the Spaniards at sea, who have now in the port of Valparaiso five frigates, the Villa de Madrid, Blanca, Berenguela, Resolucion, and the iron-clad Numancia; corvette Vencedora; dispatch Marques de la Victoria, and the steamer Matias Coresiño. Beside these we have advices that three other vessels have started for the Chilian coast from Spain. The great difficulty with the Spaniards will be in the matter of provisions, as the Peruvian and Chilian vessels will watch well the different ports and inlets, to prevent the landing of boats from the fleet.

The Government of Lima has ordered that no Spaniards shall leave Peru, and that they shall have their names registered at Lima, and be kept under strict surveillance. No person can embark from any port without a passport. This is with a view to reprisals, if the Spanish fleet shall commit any depredations.

Agents have been sent by Peru and Chili to all the other Spanish-American States, inviting alliances against Spain. It is hoped by them that Gen. MOSQUERA, when he assumes the Presidency of the United States of Colombia, will join the two Powers, with his two war steamers, now on their way to Panama and Aspinwall.

The Peruvian Minister of Foreign Relations has published a long manifesto, in which he explains the reason of his Government for declaring war against Spain, and has also addressed circulars to the representatives of foreign nations, which I inclose you.

Central America.

PANAMA, Thursday, Feb. 1, 1866.

By the Panama Railroad Company's steamship Salvador we have dates from Guatemala to the 19th, Salvador to the 23d, Nicaragua to the 25th, and Costa Rica to the 27th of January. The news is of but little importance.

GUATEMALA.

Congress continues in session, and the country continues quiet. A violent hurricane, "which lasted several days," commenced at Escuintla on the 3d, which destroyed many straw houses, and devastated the plantations. The loss is estimated at $400,000.

HONDURAS.

Gen. MEDERIA is elected President for the next constitutional term.

SALVADOR.

This Republic is, at present, quiet, but much dissatisfaction exists, and a revolution is not improbable. Congress was to be installed soon.

NICARAGUA.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the judgment of the lower Court against the schooner Manuelita Planas, the vessel which, under the United States flag, sought to land the unfortunate Gen. BARRIOS in Salvador.

Gen. MARTINEZ having declined to accept a renomination for President, the choice is likely to fall on Don JUAN BAUTISTA SACAZA, who is highly spoken of as a man in whose character is united patriotism, honorable antecedents, probity, &c., &c.

COSTA RICA.

No news. Coffee is selling at Punta Arenas at $14 50 to $15 per quintal.

Panama.

PANAMA, Thursday, Feb. 1, 1866.

Accounts from the interior of the Republic represent that everything is quiet. Congress, at Bogota, will commence its annual sessions to-day. Gen. MOSQUERA, President elect, has not yet arrived from England. He writes under date of Jan. 1, from London, that he shall leave there for Aspinwall or Carthagena in the course of the month.

A conspiracy among the troops, or rather among a few of the lesser officers, to overthrow the present State Government was discovered, and consequently frustrated, on the evening of Jan. 24, in this city. The force of 200 men, which is supposed to be the bulwark of the present Administration, need a good deal of watching.

M. EDMOND DE LESSEPS, Minister from France to Lima, arrived at Aspinwall on the 27th and proceeded on his voyage from Panama on the 29th.

DAVID HOADLEY, Esq., President of the Panama Railroad Company, with some friends, arrived at Aspinwall on the 28th, and is now examining the road and its business. He returns by the steamer of the 12th from Aspinwall.

The news that a new line of steamers is to be established between New-York and San Francisco via Aspinwall and Panama, causes quite a sensation in these parts, but will cause a greater one at Greytown, for it is the death-knell of that "line." Those who wish to patronize "opposition" will be in favor of "fighting it out on this line" rather than with the long passages and detentions of the Nicaragua Company. At the last accounts from Greytown, 1,400 persons "were waiting transportation between there and New-York and San Francisco," with a fair chance of six or eight days on the crowded river and lake boats, and in wading through the mud of the portages around the river rapids.

The British Steamship Company between Aspinwall and Southampton have nearly completed their fine iron wharf at Aspinwall, and the Panama Railroad Company will have their new iron wharf ready for the new steamship company in a month or so. Capt. STOUT, of New-York, is there looking out for wharf and other facilities for the new Company.

The monthly steamer from Aspinwall for St. Nazaire, France, will depart on her voyage from the former port to-night.

The Barbacoas Gold Mines, in this Republic, seem to be attracting much attention in California. About forty persons from there are here awaiting transportation to Santa Martha and the Magdalena.

The steamship Colorado, from San Francisco, arrived in port this morning bringing 300 passengers, 60 of whom are miners bound for the southern part of this Republic.

This is the third batch that has come down with the same object, and it is to be feared they are entirely misled in regard to the prospects of success in the country to which they are bound. The mines have been worked in years gone by by the Spaniards and of late years in a small way by the natives of the country, but one or two speculative Americans who have been residing there for several years have recently sent exaggerated accounts of the wealth of the region to California, which are inducing hard-working men to leave steady employment in pursuit of something entirely visionary. It is to be hoped that three months will not find them all back here beggars.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

OUR ALBANY LETTER.

The Health Bill in the House—Minority Report by Mr. Berryman—Exciting Debate—The Speaker on the Floor—Sharp Passage-at-arms between Mr. Littlejohn and the Speaker—Thanks to Secretary Seward.

ALBANY, Friday, Feb. 9, 1866.

The Health Bill was reported to the House this morning by Dr. CONGDON, Chairman of the Committee on Public Health, and immediately there occurred one of the most exciting scenes that has been witnessed since the session began. The Committee have amended the bill so as to conform to the Jenkins resolution in the Union caucus, giving the Governor power to appoint Sanitary Commissioners. The Committee have also volunteered several amendments of their own.

Mr. BERRYMAN, of New-York, presented a minority report, dissenting from the views of the majority, declaring his conviction that the Senate bill was demanded by the people of New-York City, and embodying that bill in his report, with some verbal changes.

Mr. J. L. PARKER objected to the reception of the minority report.

Speaker TREMAIN decided that it could not be received.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN hoped the Chair would review the decision. He had never yet known of an instance where the minority of a committee were not permitted to report. He was proceeding to argue the question when J. L. PARKER called him to order. Mr. LITTLEJOHN said, since he was driven to it, he would appeal from the decision of the Chair. He contended that it was trampling on the rights of the minority to deny them a hearing. He relied on the rules of the House, the established custom and the rights of minorities in the position he assumed. Having thus expressed his views, he would withdraw the appeal and move that the minority report be received and referred to the same Committee of the Whole having the other bill in charge. He wished to know whether the House would refuse this privilege—a right he had never before heard denied.

D. P. WOOD hoped the motion would prevail. He thought the minority had no absolute right to report without the consent of the House, but he had never known the privilege to be denied on any great public measure.

J. L. PARKER said, with all deference to the gentleman from Oswego, the motion was a sheer piece of folly. He supposed the object was to get rid of moving amendments in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN wanted to know why the gentlemen were afraid to have the Senate bill brought before the House. Was it because the sentiment of New-York City was almost unanimous in favor of that measure, so necessary as a preparation for pestilence? He was astonished that gentlemen should be so sensitive about this matter.

J. L. PARKER was sorry the gentleman should have thought fit to make a stump speech on his motion.

Speaker TREMAIN called Mr. PITTS to the chair, took the floor, and made a speech, defending his ruling as being in accordance with Parliamentary law.

Mr. T. E. STEWART called him to order, but the Chair decided he was in order, amid the laughter of the galleries.

A sharp passage-at-arms occurred between the Speaker and Mr. LITTLEJOHN, the latter still contending stoutly for the rights of minorities, and the former insisting that no minority of a committee could report except as an especial favor. After splintering lances on both sides, greatly to the interest of the spectators, the motion of Mr. LITTLEJOHN finally prevailed.

Mr. J. L. PARKER said by the unanimous agreement of both parties interested, he would move to make the Health Bill the special order for Tuesday next. The motion was adopted.

Mr. BERRYMAN, who made the minority report, voted with the majority in the Union caucus last Tuesday night, but has changed his views since then. It is said that the little eleven who stood by the Senate bill in that caucus will yet leaven the whole lump! At all events, they have gained ground since the caucus was held. Senators freely express their determination to stand firm, and throw the responsibility of defeating the bill upon the House.

The resolution of thanks to Secretary SEWARD for his consummate skill in managing our foreign affairs, as evidenced in the proposed withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico, will meet the cordial approbation of all sensible men. I am in hopes that it will pass unanimously, as it deserves. PERSIMMON.

By Mr. CONGDON—The Metropolitan Health Bill, with amendments.

Mr. BERRYMAN presented a minority report on the subject.

Mr. PARKER objected to the minority report.

Mr. BERRYMAN insisted that he had a right to make a minority report.

The Speaker said that it was in order for the minority to report their views to the House, but that they could not report by bill.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN took exceptions to the ruling of the chair.

The Speaker took the floor and argued in favor of his ruling.

After debate Mr. J. L. PARKER withdrew his objection and the minority report, embracing the Senate Health Bill, was received and referred to the same Committee of the Whole as minority report.

On motion of Mr. J. L. PARKER the whole subject was made the special order for Tuesday morning next, immediately after the reading of the journal.

Mr. JEWETT offered the following, which was referred to the Committee on Federal Relations:

Whereas, A select committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New-York, after consideration of a memorial laid before them of the officers of the United States Navy for the increase of pay, did resolve that this report and the memorial of the officers of the United States Navy be sent to Hon. E. D. MORGAN, of the United States Senate, and to Hon. H. J. RAYMOND, of the House of Representatives, and that they be requested to urge the subject upon the favorable consideration of Congress.

Resolved therefore, That if the Senate concur, the members of this body do concur in the resolution of the Select Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New-York, and that a copy of this preamble and resolution be sent to each member of the United States Senate, and also to each member of the House of Representatives, of the State of New-York.

Venture of a New-York Merchant—An Extensive Embezzlement Case.

In the Hudson County Superior Court, in the case of JAMES C. JEWETT vs. HENRY SCHOFIELD, which has been pending for some months, a Sheriff's Jury was impanneled to fix the sum due to plaintiff. It appears that in December, 1864, Mr. JEWETT, of the firm of JAMES C. JEWETT & Co., shipping merchants in Pearl-street, New-York, chartered and loaded with a valuable cargo the brig Expert, and dispatched her for Matamoras, Mexico, with, as supercargo, HENRY SCHOFIELD, who had been in business in South-street, New-York, and who had been introduced to JEWETT & Co., by one of the first commercial houses in Halifax, recommending him to their fullest confidence. The bills of lading and invoices of the goods shipped were made to the order of SCHOFIELD, and he was delegated with full power to sell the cargo at Matamoras, and to invest the proceeds in cotton and gold coin, and return the same to Messrs. JEWETT & Co., at New-York. The brig Expert arrived at Matamoras in January, 1865; the cargo was found to be saleable, so much so that an offer in gold was made for the currency value, by which some $80,000 would have been obtained for the New-York firm, and a large profit realized. SCHOFIELD declined to accept this offer, and proceeded to dispose of the merchandise by the package, thus obtaining the fullest value. Some considerable time elapsed, and no returns were forwarded to Mr. JEWETT, and meanwhile the vessel that took out the goods, returned to New-York, partially laden with freight, but with no golden proceeds of the outward cargo on board. In May, SCHOLFIELD, without having rendered any account, or forwarded any remittances, left Matamoras for Cuba. The vessel in which he took passage was wrecked on a reef on the Mexican coast, and the crew and SCHOLFIELD proceeded by steamer from Sisal to Havana, and thence the British Consul sent the officers and crew to New-York on their way to Halifax, where they belonged, SCHOLFIELD accompanying them. They arrived in New-York in July last, and SCHOLFIELD, without reporting to his employers, came to Jersey City, where he was followed by Mr. JEWETT who caused his arrest on a warrant issued by Judge CHAMBERS on a charge of grand larceny. Failing in holding SCHOLFIELD on this warrant for want of jurisdiction on the part of the Court, proceedings were taken in the Superior Court for damages for embezzlement, and SCHOLFIELD was arrested, and in default of $80,000 bail was committed to the Hudson County Jail where he has since been confined. The award of the Jury to Mr. JEWETT was the sum of $60,656 81. The goods shipped are said to have been such as were required by the people of the States in rebellion at that time, and for whom they were probably designed, and it is believed that two or three prominent and well-known residents of Jersey City were interested in the venture, which so far has proved an unprofitable one.

ANOTHER CONCERT AT ORANGE, N. J.—Encouraged by the extraordinary success of the soiree of chamber music, given a few weeks since in Orange by Messrs. MASON & THOMAS, the Library Association of that place has arranged for a concert at Library Hall, next Tuesday evening, which will, if possible, be an improvement upon the previous one. The services of Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS, the popular vocalist; of Mr. WM. MASON, the pianist; and of Mr. THEODORE THOMAS, the violinist, have been required. The combined talent of these well-known artists will insure a large attendance.

"The doctor prescribed, as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. O. W. Holmes on his late visit—Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma, a teaspoonful in a wineglass of water, to be taken every four hours. A good night was the result."

In no case of purely asthmatic character has it failed to give prompt relief, and in many cases a permanent cure has been effected. No danger need be apprehended from its use. An infant may take it with perfect safety. (See circular.)

THE TRIBUTE BOOK;
A RECORD OF THE MUNIFICENCE,
SELF-SACRIFICE, AND PATRIOTISM,
OF THE
AMERICAN PEOPLE,
IN DEFENCE OF THEIR INTEGRITY AS A NATION,
DURING THE WAR FOR THE UNION.
BY FRANK B. GOODRICH,
Author of "The Court of Napoleon," &c.
ILLUSTRATED FROM DESIGNS BY THE FOLLOWING ARTISTS:
Darley, Nast, Whitney, Gary, Hitchcock, Penn, White, Hogan, Stephens, Hennessy, Howard, Howland, Shearman, Hochstein, Billings, Will, Hoppin, Hows, McNevin, Chapman, McLenan, Lumley, Waud, Bytinge, Herrick.

TRIBUTES TO THE "TRIBUTE BOOK."

The publishers have received the following:

FROM ANDREW JOHNSON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

"The information contained in the TRIBUTE BOOK is of great interest, and the beautiful manner in which it is bound is highly creditable to the enterprise and success of your efforts as publishers."

FROM HON. JOHN BIGELOW, UNITED STATES MINISTER IN PARIS.

"Your TRIBUTE BOOK is a beautiful and precious monument of patriotism.

"I doubt if the world has ever witnessed such a demonstration of warm-hearted devotion to country and humanity as Mr. Goodrich has so conveniently embalmed.

"It will be henceforth, I hope forever, one of the ornaments of the library of this Legation."

FROM JOHN BRIGHT, M. P.

ROCHDALE, 15th Nov., 1865.

"DEAR SIR: I write to thank you for remembering me and for sending me your handsome work, the TRIBUTE BOOK, the great record of the wonderful doings of your people during your great struggle. I think no other nation can produce such a record of patriotic efforts and sacrifices in any cause, and it will remain forever a matter of pride for your children in future times."

FROM MRS. ABRAHAM LINCOLN, CHICAGO.

"It will always be retained and cherished in the family with grateful feelings. A faithful illustration of the generosity and gratitude of our country toward the patriotic soldiers who so nobly fought in our defence."

The New-York Evening Post says:
"It is the story of seventy millions of dollars."

The Boston Journal says:
"It is full of interest, beauty and real splendor."

The New-York Herald says:
"In many eyes the book doth share the glory."

The Philadelphia Bulletin says:
"It is absolutely magnificent."

The New-York Independent says:
"It is a volume of exceeding splendor."

The Philadelphia Telegraph says:
"It is a tribute to American generosity."

The New-York Tribune says:
"It is a romance in interest and history in facts."

The Philadelphia Inquirer says:
"It is intensely interesting and thrilling."

The Boston Traveller says:
"It defies flattery and competition."

The Philadelphia North American says:
"It gives prominence to glorious facts."

The Boston Commonwealth says:
"It is a noble roll of honor."

The Philadelphia Press says:
"It will be the literary ornament of every fireside."

The Boston Saturday Gazette says:
"It is a rare and wonderful record."

The Boston Congregationalist says:
"It is a noble testimony to Christian patriotism."

The Publishers' Circular and Literary Gazette says:
"It is a trophy of the book-making art."

The Boston Transcript says:
"It is most desirable to own and prize."

The New-York Evangelist says:
"It is well worth the price asked for it."

The New-York Observer says:
"It was fitting that the story of those who at home sustained the Government in its life-struggle should be put on lasting record. Not they only who go to the battle-field are the defenders and saviours of their country. The women and the men who give their labor, their time and their money to the cause, who work and pray and send, who think of the sick and wounded and dying, and supply the hospitals and camps with food and medicines and the bread of life, these are entitled to the grateful memories of posterity, and the hearty commendations of their compatriots. It was a happy thought to embalm these patriotic works in one magnificent volume, a record of the voluntary offerings of the American people to the cause of their beloved country in the hour of its deadly peril."

The TRIBUTE BOOK is prepared with fidelity and impartiality, and the result is honorable to the philanthropic and religious character of the people. The mechanical execution challenges criticism. A large quarto, on the purest paper, combining elegance with durability, it is in all these respects, and every other, worthy of the illustrious object it is designed to commemorate. As it is published only by subscription, we doubt not that it will for many years to come be the crowning ornament and treasure of thousands of patriotic households in our happy land, rejoicing in peace and the restoration of a disturbed and beloved union."

THE TRIBUTE BOOK contains five hundred and twenty pages royal octavo, printed on fine tinted paper, and is illustrated by one hundred and fifty engravings. It is bound in Turkey morocco, gilt edges and sides, in the best style of workmanship. The book is sold EXCLUSIVELY BY SUBSCRIPTION, at the reasonable price of TWENTY DOLLARS.

NO. 98 WEST 27TH-ST., BETWEEN 6TH and 7TH AVS.

As a medical clairvoyant Madame Winslow exceeds all others gifted with this wonderful power; she accurately locates and minutely describes all diseases, the cause, effect and remedy. Many of our most respectable and prominent citizens can testify to her remarkable powers and success in describing and curing the most aggravated, hopeless and desperate cases of dyspepsia, pulmonic affections, rheumatism, &c. Ring the basement bell.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

After years of scientific researches in Europe and South America, I have made a wonderful discovery.

I can cure in 36 hours any case of falling of the womb, "prolapsus uteri," without respect to age. The remedy, which is external, is known to myself alone, and replaces the womb without pain in its primitive natural position. No exposure, no pessaves or instruments used. References of important cases of long standing can be given.

Treatment of every other female complaint, from whatever cause produced. ABRAHAM K. COX, M. D., No. 67 Carmine-st. Office hours, 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.

THOUSANDS ARE TIMELY SAVED BY Dr. KENNEDY'S skillful and improved treatment.—Private diseases cured in the shortest possible time by Dr. KENNEDY & CO., No. 195 Elm-st., New-York, without the use of mercury, loss of time or change of die Dr. KENNEDY, from the hospitals of London, Pari and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr KENNEDY, No. 195 Elm-st. CHICKERING & SONS, ESTABLISHED 1823.

MANUFACTURERS OF GRAND, SQUARE AND UPRIGHT PIANO-FORTES, No. 652 BROADWAY.—The superiority of these instruments has of late been amply demonstrated by the voluntary testimony of the foremost artists of the day, who claim for them excellencies of tone and workmanship hitherto unobtained by any other makers.

Mr. GOTTSCHALK'S constant use of the NEW SCALE CHICKERING GRAND PIANO-FORTES has severely tested their musical qualities, and resulted in establishing the justice of the very flattering estimation in which they are held.

Messrs. CHICKERING & SONS are sole agents for the celebrated Alexandre Organs for the United States.

THE WEBER PIANO-FORTE

is called the best instrument made by all the leading musicians of this city and elsewhere. It is pronounced by the National Piano-forte Association, after a trial in their rooms with the first manufacturers of this country, eminently the best piano in America, and used by the Conservatory of Music and other high music schools, altogether because of their immense power, equality, sweetness and brilliancy of tone, elastic touch and great durability. EUROPEAN NEWS.

the care with which it transfers the responsibility of the new Mexican monarchy either to the influential men of the country who conceived the project, or to the populations which have been called upon to decide on this point. We could not refuse them our sympathy, continues the document, but it was not for that we went to Mexico; our sole object was to obtain reparation, and we could not have sent troops there for the purposes of intervention without placing ourselves in contradiction with a fundamental principle of our public law. In a word, "We carried our arms into that country by virtue of the rights of war, and we have remained there until this moment in order to assure the result of the war; that is, to obtain the guarantees and the securities which the interests of our countrymen claim." It is difficult to be more explicit, or, as we said in commencing, to repudiate more distinctly the partnership which the public feared to see established between the French Empire and that of Mexico. Why, in fact, should we consider ourselves as charged with the interests of MAXIMILIAN I. and the cause of the monarchy in Mexico? Either we have endowed that country with a form of government the people did not ask for, and then, as the report says, we have thereby followed a course contrary to the fundamental principles of our public law, or we have formally requested the people themselves to decide, and in that case it is they who must support the Government they have chosen; and if that Government is no longer acceptable to them, it rests with them to change it once more. With the principles which the French Government has here just enunciated, it is impossible for the Mexican question not to be promptly settled. It may be said that it is so already, and that there are henceforth only measures of execution to be taken.

FUTURE RELATIONS OF FRANCE WITH THE UNITED STATES.

From the Journal des Débats, Jan. 24.

This time the question of Mexico, involving the very serious one of the future relations of France with the United States, attracted general attention, and the hope of hearing the close of the expedition announced in a definite manner had taken strong possession of the public mind. The Emperor's declaration on this capital question will satisfy all those who read that part of the Imperial speech with the attention it merits. Not that any determinate period is assigned for the recall of the French troops, but the fact already known of the mission of a French agent, charged to announce to the Emperor MAXIMILIAN their speedy return, and to fix the date in concert with him, adds to the Imperial declaration more precision than it appears to have when the words only are taken into consideration. What above all contributes a decisive meaning to the language in question is the indirect exhortation addressed immediately after to the United States, in order to prevent them, if there is yet time, from complicating our position in Mexico by any inopportune proceeding, and from rendering more difficult, by bringing the dignity of the French Government into question, the honorable retreat proposed. This admonition, so pressing and so clearly worded, appears to us a sign of a definitive resolution, the execution of which, we hope, cannot be long delayed. The United States besides have only to congratulate themselves on that part of the Imperial Speech which directly concerns them. Never has there been a more cordial sympathy with them testified in the name of France; never has the glorious struggle just ended been characterized in fitter language; never have more distinct wishes been put forth for their concord and prosperity. From this passage it may be seen once more how very ill-informed were the writers and how false the course taken by that part of the French press which very mistakingly piques itself on representing the views of the Government, in violently making common cause with the South, and loudly proclaiming its hopes for the destruction of the American Union. The disavowal is not less energetic nor the lesson less severe for all those correspondences and manifestoes which thought fit to praise the expedition to Mexico, by representing it as one hostile to the United States, and conceived specially for the purpose of opposing an obstacle to their greatness. Public opinion will feel indebted to the Sovereign for having thus disavowed those who, during four years, had so little understood and so ill-expressed his ideas.

THE MISSION OF M. SAILLARD.

Paris (Jan. 24) Correspondence of the London Times.

You are, perhaps, aware that a diplomatic agent, M. SAILLARD, has, within the last few days, sailed for Mexico on a special mission to the Emperor MAXIMILIAN, though, if I am rightly informed, he is not the bearer of written instructions, but only of a verbal message from the Emperor NAPOLEON himself. M. SAILLARD had only just returned from a mission to Tunis. He was sent for by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and requested to attend without a moment's delay. On presenting himself he was asked whether he was willing and ready to undertake another mission of more importance than the last. M. SAILLARD naturally desired to be informed what sort of mission it was. On this, however, the Minister could not say anything; all the explanations would be given by the Emperor himself; and if he consented he would at once accompany him to the presence. M. SAILLARD signified his assent, and proceeded in the Minister's carriage to the palace. He was immediately conducted by an officer in waiting to the Emperor's Cabinet. His Majesty, who evidently expected him, was alone, pacing the room from one end to the other, with his hands behind his back, much in the manner of his uncle, as he is popularly represented, and looking anxious, if not a little stern. After a short pause His Majesty said that he wanted him to set out without delay for Mexico, with a message from him to the Emperor MAXIMILIAN. He was to tell him that he considered he had now fulfilled all the obligations imposed upon him; that the Mexican throne, raised by the will of the Mexican nation, was, or should be, sufficiently consolidated; that its enemies were scattered or destroyed; and, finally, that the time had now arrived when he must depend on his own resources, without the help of a French army. The Envoy, of course, assured His Majesty that he would fulfill the mission to the best of his ability, but he respectfully suggested that it was unusual to dispatch one on a mission without written instructions, or, at least, without a simple letter to the personage to whom he was sent. The Emperor observed there was no necessity for any document; all he had to do was simply to represent to the Emperor MAXIMILIAN the conversation which he had just had with him, and that would suffice. He recommended him, moreover, to lose no time in setting out; he must depart by the next steamer. M. SAILLARD took his leave. Still troubled at the notion of departing without instructions, he proceeded to the Foreign Office, mentioned that he had no dispatch from the Emperor, and hoped that the Minister would supply the deficiency. The answer was that as His Majesty had directly signified his pleasure, he could not give him what he asked for. All he had to do was to obey the Emperor's commands and repeat to MAXIMILIAN the verbal message His Majesty communicated to him. Still, anxious to have a document of some kind from some one, M. SAILLARD is said to have applied to another personage, who, though not a member of the Cabinet, is a functionary of the highest class, and whose influence at the Imperial Court is, on various accounts, considerable. This personage, hearing that neither the Emperor nor the Minister had given written instructions to the Envoy, declined to interfere. He had no official position as a Minister, and the office he held, though very high, did not warrant him in giving instructions to one who had been directly instructed, though not in writing, by the Emperor himself. There was no hope for it. M. SAILLARD made his preparations, and set out from Paris the same evening. I am assured that this incident passed nearly as I have described it; but if it be asked what object was there in sending an Envoy to Mexico in this way, I confess myself unable to reply. The Emperor NAPOLEON never does anything without some good and substantial reason; what his reason is in the present instance he himself only knows. I am not quite sure that the Emperor, in his communication with M. SAILLARD, fixed a period for the evacuation of Mexico; but if he did, it would be the 1st of January, 1867.

THE INTERNAL ADMINISTRATION OF MEXICO.

The Constitutionnel of Jan. 25, publishes an article signed by M. PAULIN LIMAYRAC, with reference to the recently published dispatches of Mr. BIGELOW. In this article M. LIMAYRAC shows that M. DROUYN DE LHUYS could not give explanations with regard to acts of internal administration in Mexico for which the Mexican Government alone was responsible. The writer adds: "The United States cannot call the resistance offered by a number of plundering adventurers a war, after refusing the title of belligerents to the Confederates of the South."

The French Blue Book on Foreign Affairs.

The folio volume containing the review of the situation of the Empire was distributed on the 23d ult. to the Senators and members of the Chamber of Deputies. In reference to the United States it says:

Great changes took place last year in the aspect of affairs in the United States. In view of the conflict proceeding between the North and South we were, in common with the other maritime Powers, under the necessity of recognizing the existence of two belligerents, and of stating the fact by a public declaration. Immediately it became certain that the Union renounced exercising the laws of war to search neutral vessels, we hastened to revoke the measures which were the consequence of our neutrality. The complete success of the Federal forces has caused the return to the Union of all the States which endeavored to secede therefrom. From that moment the solicitude of the Washington Cabinet was directed to the means of repairing the calamities of so profound a crisis. We most earnestly and constantly desired the pacification of the United States, and were rejoiced to see a termination of the effusion of generous blood. We now wish that this great country may promptly effect its reorganization in the manner best calculated to insure its future tranquillity, and assist the resumption and development of the important commercial relations it maintains with the whole world.

On the subject of Mexico, the report says:

When the Emperor's Government undertook the expedition to Mexico it had an object in view which its conduct was made to serve, and upon which its decisions still depend. For a number of years past our countrymen have constantly suffered acts of violence and pillage committed with the evident complicity of agents of the Mexican authorities. We were under the necessity of declaring war. The anarchy which had become the normal condition of Mexico had for some time given subject for reflection to her principal citizens, who deplored the increasing decadence of their country. Despairing of reëstablishing order under the system then existing, they entertained the project of returning to monarchy, of which independent Mexico made a first trial in 1822. They had received, more than ten years previously, some encouragement from the very chief who was then at the head of the Mexican Republic. They considered that the moment had come to make an appeal to the country. His Majesty's Government did not feel justified in withholding from them its sympathies; but he went to Mexico with the object of obtaining the reparation which we had demanded, and not with the idea of monarchical proselytism. His Majesty himself declared, in a letter addressed to the Commander-in-Chief of our army after the taking of Puebla, that it was for the people alone to pronounce upon the form of the institutions which suited them.

Our troops are not, therefore, in Mexico with the object of intervention. The Imperial Government has constantly regarded this doctrine as contrary to the fundamental principle of our public law. We have carried our arms into that country by virtue of the right of war, and we have remained there up to the present moment in order to assure the results of war—that is to say, obtain the guarantees and securities demanded by the interests of our countrymen. Mexico is now governed by regular authority, strictly fulfilling its engagements, and causing foreign subjects and their property to be respected in its territory. When the necessary arrangements shall have been concluded with the Emperor MAXIMILIAN, far from declining the consequences of our principle in the matter of intervention, we shall be ready to accept them as a rule of conduct for all the Powers. It will then be easy for us to fix the period at which the return to France shall take place of that portion of the Mexican expeditionary corps hitherto maintained on Mexican soil. The documents relative to the affair will be subsequently communicated to the great bodies of the State.

SPAIN.

Ridiculous End of the Revolution—Prim's Escape in Portugal.

CONFIRMATION OF FORMER STATEMENTS.

A Madrid telegram of the 24th says the Government have received a dispatch from the Spanish Embassador at Lisbon, announcing that Gen. PRIM, with six hundred cavalry, had arrived at Barrancos, in Portugal. He had declared his readiness to give up his horses and accoutrements to a Spanish Commissioner.

Advices from Tarragona state that ESCODA's band has been defeated and dispersed.

The Journal de Commercio, of Lisbon, says that Gen. PRIM would be received in Portugal as a Spaniard who has attempted, though unsuccessfully, to liberate his country from despotism.

WHY PRIM WAS PERMITTED TO ESCAPE.

Madrid (Jan. 21) Correspondence of the London Times.

However intimately convinced one may be of the utter stupidity of such heroes as ZABALA, ECHAGUE, and other leaders—however anxious O'DONNELL may be supposed to have been not to catch a prisoner of whom it was not easy satisfactorily to dispose, it is impossible to believe that PRIM could have been allowed thus to scour the country up and down, backward and forward, and support himself and his followers at its cost for the best part of three weeks, had there not been some other and more cogent cause to slacken and almost paralyze the movements of the loyal columns. This cause must, according to the opinion of most men here, be sought in the mistrust with which the Government troops inspired their commanders. ZABALA and ECHAGUE took good care to keep aloof from PRIM's bands, it is strongly believed, lest the mere sight of the rebels should raise rebellion, mutiny, and desertion among their own followers. This appears to be so true that the only one who is described as always riding close on PRIM's footsteps was Maj. CAMINO, and he had, as we know, not any part of the army, but merely civil guards or gendarmes, under his command. On the allegiance of the civil guards the Government can, of course, reckon under all circumstances.

Whatever may have been the real causes which contributed to this unreasonable prolongation of the revolt, there is but little doubt it is now virtually at an end, and its signal discomfiture ought to go far toward completely reassuring the Government against all apprehensions of any speedy repetition of similar attempts, for where such a man as PRIM failed others are not likely to have much chance. The Government, in fact, is said to be full of confidence and renewed zeal, so that measures of no little importance are expected to be taken into immediate consideration. In the first place O'DONNELL, although he thinks he has full reason to rely on the fidelity of the chiefs and superior officers, no less than on the great mass of the privates of the army, has been, by the late events, made aware of a great disaffection on the part of some of the minor officers, and of the whole body of the sergeants and corporals in almost every corps; the rottenness in these ranks is so far advanced that even yesterday seven officers had to be packed off from the barracks on the Montana del Principe Pio to Alicante, there to be embarked for some distant African garrison, where they may be out of mischief's way. O'DONNELL is, therefore, it is said, convinced of the necessity of a complete reorganization of the whole army, and contemplates its reduction to little more than half its present force; a measure that will be considered as little less than providential if, as we are told, Spain is to lavish her treasures in the extension of her naval power.

HIS RECEPTION IN PORTUGAL.

From the Paris Patrie, Jan. 24.

When the insurgent leader arrived at the frontier he had only with him 350 men out of the 800 whom he had led away from Aranjuez and Ocana. The others had either made their submission or fallen into the power of the royal troops. He had at first determined to enter Portugal in arms, but he learned on the 10th, from a sure source, that the Cabinet of Lisbon had declared that if the insurgents endeavored to pass the frontier with their arms it would authorize the Spanish troops to pursue them into the Portuguese territory. This intelligence modified his resolution and induced him to deliver up to the Alcalde of Encinasola, in Spain, his arms and those of his troops, as well as the small supply of war munitions in his possession. He appeared in very low spirits, fatigued, and suffering in health. On arriving in Portugal he found a Portuguese Colonel with his regiment. He was told that he could not reside in the country. He then asked for an authorization to embark in the French steam-packet, on which he was informed that it had just put to sea, and was recommended to take the English boat for Southampton, with an intimation that thence he could go wherever he pleased. His troops will be assigned quarters in Portugal till further orders.

HE WAS TO EMBARK FOR ENGLAND.

Paris (Jan. 24) Correspondence of the London Globe.

You may be prepared for PRIM's arrival by next Southampton packet. The Portuguese authorities had informed him on the 19th January that if he made an armed appearance within the King's territory, armed pursuit by the Spanish troops would be also sanctioned; that he must, therefore, deliver up his horses and war accoutrements to the Alcalde of Encinasola on the frontier, a process he went through. He seemed greatly downcast and careworn, but asked to be put on board the steamer for France. The boat had taken its weekly departure, and the British mail was the earliest conveyance available. It is not likely that the welcome greeting KOSSUTH or GARIBALDI received will await the hero of twenty days' promenading in the Peninsula.

Miscellaneous Items.

The Spaniards cannot reconcile themselves to the little mishap of the Covadonga; the language of the Press is too decided and too unanimous for any Government to be indifferent to it. The ministerial Politica of Jan. 22, after blaming PAREJA for limiting his action to a blockade, while he should have begun by a bombardment, expresses a hope that the Spanish sailors, in their magnanimous wrath, may already, by this time, have avenged the loss of their sloop by a summary chastisement of such enemies as came within reach of their guns, "swearing on the body of their heroic Admiral to wreak on the Chilian Republic all the vengeance which its cowardly attempt has provoked." The Politica accuses England of backing up the Chilians, and of giving them material aid and comfort.

A Madrid dispatch, of the 25th, says: "The draft of an address to the Queen was read in to-day's sitting of the Senate. It expresses regret at the breaking out of hostilities between Spain and Chili, but hopes that after the refusal of the latter to satisfy the Spanish claims, the Queen's Government will cause the honor and dignity of Spain to be respected. The address also expresses the satisfaction of the Senate at the domestic reforms announced by the Government. The Queen gave birth to a son on the 24th of January.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Political Affairs—Preparations for the Opening of Parliament—The Fenian Trials.

The political world begins to assume some vitality in view of the approaching meeting of Parliament. The members of both Houses were to assemble on the 1st of February, but the proceedings of the first few days would be confined to mere matters of form, such as the swearing in of members, the election of Speaker, &c. The formal opening of the session by the Queen in person would not take place till the 6th inst. The nature of the proposed Reform Bill continued to be actively discussed. The Times shows hostility to a moderate measure, and contends that a bill which only deals with the franchise will not deserve the name of a reform bill.

The daily trial and conviction of Fenian prisoners continued in Dublin. One of the prisoners, upon a verdict of guilty being returned against him, admitted that he had a fair trial and that honest men were on the Jury.

The Police had searched a house in Gardiner's-row, Dublin, supposed to be an Orange Lodge, and found in it a quantity of swords and bayonets, which they seized and conveyed to the Castle. The Police had also made some additional arrests of Fenians.

Further seizures of arms are also reported at Belfast.

The London Times, in an article on Fenianism, gives proof of the state of Ireland. Since the County of Dublin has been proclaimed many of the malcontents, it declares, have migrated elsewhere, and have carried the taint of their doctrines into a new field, where they have more freedom of action.

The shifting of arms from a proclaimed to a non-proclaimed district is also one of those expedients to which the conspirators will necessarily have resort, and which it is desirable that the Government should efficiently check.

For these and other reasons the Times thinks that the whole of the island should be proclaimed, and it dwells on the fact that counties, hitherto deemed loyal, are now the very opposite.

A vessel that was on the point of sailing from the Thames for Peru was detained at the instance of the Spanish Consul-General. Suspicion was entertained that the vessel was intended to make war upon Spanish commerce, under the Chilian flag, and proceedings were forthwith instituted to carry out the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act in the matter.

A dispatch from London of Jan. 28 says that reported Chilian privateers have appeared off Valencia, and chased coasting vessels. The Spanish Press denounce them as pirates.

GENERAL CONTINENTAL NEWS.

France.

The draft of the Budget for 1867 had been presented to the Chamber.

The ordinary expenditure is calculated at 1,524,000,000 francs, the ordinary revenue at upward of 1,622,000,000 francs. After appropriating from the latter 88,000,000 francs for the Extraordinary Budget, there will remain a surplus of 10,500,000 francs. The issue of Treasury bonds is to be limited to 150,000,000 francs.

The Presse had received a first warning on account of an objectionable political article.

The weekly returns of the Bank of France exhibit an increase in the cash on hand of 3,700,000 francs.

Russia and the Papacy.

The Wanderer, of Vienna, says: "We learn on reliable authority that Russia has solicited the friendly offices of the Prussian Cabinet to bring about a renewal of diplomatic relations between Russia and Rome. Prussia declared her readiness to comply with this request, and instructed Herr VON ARNIM, her representative at the Holy See, to open negotiations at once with Cardinal ANTONELLI, with a view to obtain the Pope's acceptance of Prussian mediation."

The Proposed Conference on the Duchies.

The London Star says that France lately, at the suggestion, it is believed, of the Austrian Cabinet, suggested to England the convening of a new conference on the Schleswig-Holstein question. Earl RUSSELL expressed himself as unfavorable to the proposition for the present, unless indeed under certain peculiar conditions, as the scheme for the present is at an end.

THE ACCIDENT ON THE MORRIS AND ESSEX RAILROAD.

The Inquest Before Coroner Sandford—Ten Witnesses Examined—The Breaking of the Bridge Due to Rotten and Unsound Timbers—The Railroad Company Charged with Gross and Culpable Neglect.

The investigation into the causes of the late accident on the Morris and Essex Railroad, near Bloomfield, N. J., which resulted in the death of Mr. MILTON B. HOLT, and the serious injury of several other persons, was commenced before Coroner G. SANDFORD, yesterday afternoon. The following gentlemen composed the jury:

Joel M. Hubbard, Horace Pierson, Horace Dodd, Samuel Moore, James McCracken, Alber. H. Hurlburt, Edward B. Crane, Reuben N. Dodd, Joseph H. Colfax, Jacob G. Post.

The first witness called was

Henry J. Davis, a mason by trade, who testified that he was not acquainted with Milton B. Holt; was at the scene of the accident soon after it occurred; the bridge where the accident occured was about 25 feet wide, and from the level of the bridge to the water of the creek was about nine feet; the string pieces were completely broken down; the locomotive was then on the south side of the bridge, having passed over, followed by the tender and one passenger car; the second car was swung around and thrown down the embankment; the third car, the smoking car, was in the creek a perfect mass of ruins; saw among the ruins Messrs. Davis and Arbuthnot, whom he recognized; the others he did not know; saw the body of Milton Holt lying under the ruins, his head near the top of the abutment; assisted in removing the rubbish and releasing the body, having to cut away some of the timbers to do so; the body was fearfully mangled and the bones of the head and face were mashed; did not know who deceased was; learned that it was Milton B. Holt before I left the ground; looked at the condition of the timbers yesterday morning, and saw the ends of the timbers very much decayed, the rot extending about eighteen inches from the abutment—that part of the string pieces resting on the abutment.

Ira Campbell, constable, sworn: Deposed that he resides in Bloomfield; when he went there they had just succeeded in taking the dead body out of the ruins. It was so much disfigured that it was not recognizable; took possession of the effects on the body of the deceased. (Exhibited the articles to the jury, consisting of two handkerchiefs, two pairs of gloves, a gold watch and black guard chain, and the sum of $7 in bills and 70 cents in currency, two pocket-knives, a number of keys, some studs and a newspaper. There were also some memoranda and a card with M. B. Holt upon it.) By these memoranda witness was enabled to identify him, this identification being confirmed by a friend of deceased, a Mr. Maxwell, then present; he knew the deceased: he was a single man, and boarded with Mrs. Hardcastle, of the Mountain House, Montclair; he was the son of Warren Holt, who formerly kept the Mountain House, and grandson of Mr. Parkhurst, of Newark.

Mr. George S. Dwight being sworn, said: He resided at Montclair; was acquainted with Milton B. Holt during five years, during which time he boarded with him at the Mountain House; he was associated with his grandfather, Stephen R. Parkhurst, in the manufacture of cotton machinery at Newark, having an office in New-York; saw him last alive just before we reached the depot at Montclair yesterday morning; took passage with him there at 7:45; he was then in his usual health; did not see him again till after the accident; was in the car directly behind the smoking car; he understood that Mr. Holt was in the car in advance of the smoking car, that being the one in which he usually rode as he got out at Newark; when the accident occurred the train was going about twenty miles an hour; the car on which witness was went down, one end of it, into the creek; the cars in advance of him were torn to pieces; saw six or eight injured, amongst them Messrs. Doremus, Davis, Arbuthnot, Graham, and Brandigan; examined the bridge since the accident and found the stringers at their extreme ends considerably decayed; that part of the stringers which rested on the abutments was where the decay was; did not know how many stringers there were; saw but two, those decayed he saw were of oak, except one which was of pine; those timbers were about fourteen inches square; he was not satisfied that the breaking down of the bridge was owing to the rottenness of the ends of the stringers; thought the bridge first settled down, and the cars being thrown off the line, the result was the complete breaking down of the bridge; this, however, was only his theory; the iron rods connecting the truss with the stringers had given way, they were one and three-fourth inches in diameter; he understood that iron was much more liable to break in frosty weather, still more so when the frost was leaving the ground; was in the habit of riding on this line for a number of years; heard that the engine running that day was four or five tons heavier than that of engines usually running; the same engine had passed over twice that morning; he was not connected with the road in any way nor a stockholder;

Joseph B. Beadle, a manufacturer of table cutlery, residing at Montclair, sworn: testified that he knew Milton B. Holt, and saw him last alive at a wedding party at the house of Charles K. Wilmot, of Montclair; he was in the fourth car also at the time of the accident; were going at more than the usual speed at that place; did not think that the rate of speed would necessarily contribute to the cause of the accident, but was aware that the concussion was greater than the speed was great; he examined the stringers after the accident and found the timber to be so decayed as to be entirely unsafe; he saw one of the iron rods, that on the east side, was broken after the accident; this might have on breaking itself caused the accident; the iron was not large enough in his opinion to support the weight, being of so long reach; was not a bridge builder, but had some experience in caring bridges and in the building of bulk-heads at water-works; had no experience in railroad bridges.

Theron Sandford, being sworn: Deposed that he resided at Montclair; knew Mr. Holt; saw him last alive within two minutes before the disaster; was in the same car with him; was seated within about five feet; was himself slightly injured.

Peter A Tronson, testified: That he resided at Montclair; is a locomotive engineer, employed on the Newark and Bloomfield Road; had been in their employment for one year and nine months; was on the train at the time of the accident; was running about fifteen miles an hour, not more than the usual speed for that locality; the bridge gave way; the end of the bridge next the Bloomfield station; in crossing over the bridge knew that something was wrong, as the engine went down, he should judge, a foot; he then reversed his engine for the purpose of breaking up; broke up within twenty-five yards of the bridge; yesterday morning he did not run the same engine as he usually ran; it was about four tons heavier; should judge this engine was about twenty tons; those he usually drove were fifteen tons; did not not think the extra weight of this engine would cause the accident; had made four trips the day before, and one on the morning of the disaster, with this same engine; about two months ago noticed that the bridge had a spring—an unusual one—when his usual engine, the flight line, was passing over; reported this to the boss carpenter who repairs the bridges; he (the carpenter) went and stood underneath as witness passed over with his engine; the next time he saw him he asked him if he had found out what was the matter; he said he had—that the bridge wanted a new stringer running across the bridge supported by bolts: five days after he reported a new stringer was put there; did not notice that the bridge sprung after the putting in of this new stringer; was in the centre of the bridge when he noticed it first settling down; the breaking of the iron rods would cause the settling of the bridge—more than likely even if the timbers had been sound. In reply to a juror, witness said he had run an engine over heavier than this one was; had run one on the day before five tons heavier; the engine settled more on the east side than where the bolts gave way; had no apprehension crossing the bridge after the repairs.

Jas. K. Oakes, being sworn, testified: That he resides in Bloomfield; had been a master carpenter for twenty-four years; was a good judge of timber; had examined the condition of the timber and bridge; saw that the stringer on the east side was broken eighteen feet from one end; went there again afterward with Mr. Fairbanks, a millwright; noticed the stringers, particularly those upon which the cars crossed; they were very unsound; at the ends he saw the wood was heart-rotten; the greater part of the whole stick was unsound; the timbers he measured were oak; those upon which the locomotive ran over were twelve inches by fourteen, and were thirty feet long of one piece; if these timbers had been sound in themselves he did not think they would be sufficiently strong to bear the weight of the engine, twenty tons; these timbers might have been unsound in the heart, but imperceptible to the inspection of a mechanic, without testing it by boring or sounding; had he been boss carpenter, and his attention called to the spring of the bridge, he would have adopted the same means to strengthen it as that adopted when the repair was made some months ago; attributed the accident to the unsoundness of the timber as the first cause, and the breaking of the iron a result thereof.

In reply to a juror witness stated that if he had been sent to examine the bridge, having heard complaints of its unsoundness, he would certainly have tested it, and that it would then have been very easy to have ascertained its condition; it was his opinion that the heavy timber broke before the bolts gave way.

Mr. Fairbanks, a millwright, being sworn: testified, that he was a good judge of timber; he did not notice the timber particularly yesterday, but did to-day when he went there with Mr. Oakes; they examined the timbers the track lay on; of these two, found one broken in three pieces, pretty near the middle; one break was in the middle and the other about half way between that and the north end; the timber was very much decayed—unsafe; it was decayed all the way through the whole stick; if the timbers had been sound, even if the rod had broken, it was his opinion that a locomotive might have stood safely upon it; he attributes the accident to the unsoundness of the timbers; believes that the rod broke when the bridge fell; had he been notified two months ago to examine that bridge, and sent to examine it for the purpose of repairing it, he should have first taken out the rotten timber; even if the timber had been sound-looking he should have tested it with an augur or an ax; it would have been very easy to have tested it in this way; good timber could not remain over ten years without becoming decayed so as to be unsafe; he did not think that the repairs made two months ago were sufficient to insure the safety of the traveling community. The Superintendent of the road being present, here stated in reply to a question from the Coroner, that the road had been in operation nine years. The timber which was broken in three pieces was not on the side where the rod and bolt were broken.

Isaac Dulhager, sworn: Testified that he resides at Newark; is a carpenter by trade, and in the employment of Messrs. Meeker & Hedden, and was sent to examine the bridge about two months since; he noticed that it sprung a little, and went back and reported to Mr. Sylvester Moore, who ordered him to put in a new stringer-beam as he suggested to him; put in a new stringer-beam, then looked over the track-stringers, and thought they were very good; sounded them with an axe all around; did not notice that they were decayed, except at the ends projecting over the wall plate into the ground, upon which nothing rested; had repaired other bridges on the road; the piece of timber he took out was sound in the middle where he sawed it; the stick he put in was larger than that taken out; he rode over the bridge several times since, and inquired from Mr. Tronson how it went; and he said the bridge went stiffer than ever it did before; he thought the timber he saw lying around was pretty sound. In reply to a juror, he said that he did not notice that the timbers on which the rails rested were unsafe; he went along and examined them, but he had no further orders; he was not sent to examine the bridge; only to put a stick in.

Sylvester Moore being sworn: Testified that he was a builder, employed by the Morris and Essex Railroad Company as Superintendent of their buildings and bridges; the Newark and Bloomfield Railroad Company has a separate Board of Directors, but connected in some way with the Morris and Essex Railroad Company; he was notified of the condition of the bridge in question, and came up and went down underneath the bridge until the train passed over; he thought that the straining beam yielded more than it ought to, and he made up his mind to put in a new one, which he had done immediately; he then examined the outside cords, which he found in good condition; he had no tools with him to make a more thorough examination—he depended upon the men to do that, as they had general instructions to that effect; he thought the iron rods were sufficiently strong for the stress upon them; iron grows more brittle and shrinks in frosts, and it is customary to slacken the nuts to allow them freedom; examined the strainers and found the outside ones sufficiently strong to bear a locomotive, but the inside ones had dry rot in them; had he known that the timbers were as rotten as they were found to be to-day, should have supplied new ones; if the iron bolts had broken, however sound the timber might have been, there was not sufficient strength to carry the train over; he attributed the accident to the breaking of the bolt on the east side, and believed the head on top gave way first, and the other followed as a necessity. In reply to a juror, Mr. Moore said that the bridge would have been stronger had the iron been heavier, but he thought it sufficiently strong, being quite as heavy as those on other bridges, in existence twenty years; there is great difference in timber; there is some on the Morris and Essex Road for fifteen years, which is still sound; by boring, it could have been ascertained if the timbers were sound, but not for certainty with merely sounding it.

Joseph A. Meeker being sworn, testified: That he was a builder; had done some work for Morris and Essex Railway Company; was notified about the bridge two months ago; he told Mr. Dulhager to go and see the bridge and report it to Mr. Moore; he did so; he was with him at the time. Witness testified as to the examination and repair of the bridge as stated by Mr. Moore, and to the unsoundness of the timber on examination, but he did not think that that was the cause of the accident. Witness then stated his theory, which agreed with that of Mr. Moore; he thought that if the iron had been good the timbers, even if decayed, would not have given way. In reply to a Juror, witness stated that he thought that even if the stringer broke and the bolts remained secure, the bridge would not have broken down. Whereupon the Juror suggested that the stringers must have been put in for fancy. Witness in reply to the Coroner then stated, it was his opinion that if the bolts had been renewed every three or five years the accident would not have occurred.

This closed the testimony, whereupon the Jury retired, and after two hours' deliberation returned the following

VERDICT.

That the said MILTON B. HOLT came to his death on the 8th day of February, 1866, at about 8 o'clock A. M., at Bloomfield, in the County of Essex, in consequence of injuries received while riding in a railway car of the Newark and Bloomfield Railroad Company; his death being instantaneous, the said car being precipitated through a bridge over Toney's Brook, in consequence of the breaking of the timbers forming said bridge, the said timbers being rotten and unsound, and that the said Company are guilty of gross and culpable neglect in not employing competent persons to oversee and keep in repair the bridges on their road.

(Signed) JOEL M. HUBBARD, Foreman.

We learn that Mr. MILTON HOLT, the victim of this accident, had his life insured in the New-York Accidental Insurance Company for $10,000, having paid the premium securing that sum some two months ago. The insurance was effected in favor of his stepmother.

Mr. DAVIS, the most seriously injured of the wounded, was pronounced rather better yesterday evening, and it was hoped out of danger. The other injured persons were recovering.

The condition of this line from Newark to Bloomfield is the occasion of general remark, the road for the four miles it traverses being the reverse of smooth and suggestive of accident.

Closing Exercises at the Fifth Ward Evening School.

The pupils of the Fifth Ward Evening School entertained their parents and friends last evening in the large hall of Ward School No. 44, in North Moore-street. Mr. JOHN HEWITT, in taking the chair as presiding officer for the evening, congratulated his friends and neighbors upon the progress which the school had made—its attendance having within four years risen from four hundred pupils of both sexes to six hundrem males and four hundred females now on the register, taught by Messrs. THOMAS W. CONKLIN, Principal; SAMUEL MOREHOUSE, Vice-Principal; Geo. F. Wickes, James T. Bates, Oscar Hinchman, S. Taylor, Geo. H. Combs and Mr. Peck, Assistants; Mr. Jacob T. Bergen, Teacher of French; Mr. E. W. Schanffler, Teacker of German, and Misses Margaret C. Cornell, Henrietta J. Packard, Sarah F. Miller, Jane A. Tuthill, Mary Sherwood and Emma Ransom.

The programme embraced recitation and dialogue, declamation and song, and the distribution of diplomas by Commissioner Dupignac and Ex-Commissioner Tuthill. The "Death of Marmion" was recited by Charles Abrams, a youth of 18, and Master J. E. Shelly, another lad of 13, followed with a solo. The "Career of Napoleon" Bonaparte was the theme chosen by Masters T. McMann and J. W. Keeler, youths of 18 and 20 years respectively. Master J. M. Baird, a native of East Tennessee, reproduced with spirit Col. N. G. Taylor's eloquent appeal for loyal East Tennessee before the American Union Commission, in the Hall of the House of Representatives, on Feb. 19, 1865; and Master W. Smith, in like patriotic strain, repeated with vigor a speech of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop to a Massachusetts regiment on its departure from Boston for the field. Masters W. H. Smith, J. M. Baird, N. McNab, J. G. Johnston and E. Dupignac, youths from 10 to 18, acquitted themselves creditably in dialogue, and "Music on the Waves" was sung by Misses Tyroler and Buffler and read "Maud Muller." "I would like to Change my Name," by Miss Margaret Cornell, was roundly applauded. Other recitations, dialogues, choruses and solos by Masters J. Huhn, E. Brennan, H. W. Hughes, D. Day, W. Smith, J. G. Johnston, N. McNab and Miss M. Gallagher.

At the close of the exercises brief complimentary addresses were made by Dr. JAMES S. SCHOFIELD, Commissioner BLOOMFIELD and Mr. ANDREW W. LEGGAT.

The hall, which was tastefully decorated with evergreens and a portrait of WASHINGTON wreathed in the flag of stars, was filled almost to overflowing by a highly respectable audience, embracing Messrs. Jas. M. Tuthill, J. Dupignac, Wm. H. Burros, Zimri West, Claus Puckhafer, Wm. H. Johnson and others.

A CALIFORNIAN SWINDLED OUT OF A LARGE AMOUNT OF MONEY.—A Californian named WILLIAM DAVIS, who recently arrived in New-York, for the purpose of visiting friends in the interior of the State, was yesterday swindled out of the sum of $1,300 by two sharpers, who induced him to leave the hotel where he was temporarily stopping for the purpose of visiting Brooklyn, to look at the beauties of Greenwood Cemetery and other attractions in that neighborhood, but of a different sort. They took a Greenwood car, and arriving at the end of the route, walked beyond the Coney Island car stables, where one of them exhibited what DAVIS calls a "bombshell," and not having sufficient money to bet with his friend, (as is always the case,) asked DAVIS for the loan of sufficient to make up some $2,000. This he agreed to do, and handed over $1,300. As soon as the fellows obtained the money, a difference arose between them, when they left to settle the dispute. DAVIS waited some time for their return, but they came not, and that is the last of Mr. DAVIS' money.

About 9:30 o'clock, on Thursday night, a fire broke out in the kerosene oil works of H. E BROWN, known as the Kingsland Oil Company, at Newtown Creek. The flames spread very rapidly, and before they could be extinguished the treating house, with all its machinery, &c., was destroyed, involving a loss of $25,000, which is partially covered by insurance.
